Consultants Recommend Increase In Water Rate, Effective July 1

By Lee Cahill
City Council Reporter

Although Virginia Beach already has one of the highest water rates in the state, consultants are recommending a further increase starting next July 1. This would be the first increase since 1983, said Public Utilities Director Clarence Warnstaff, that is not directly related to the increase in the wholesale price of water purchased from Norfolk or to the Lake Gaston project.

In an update of a 1986-87 study when consultants recommended a five-year financial plan for the Utilities Department, consultants have recommended a 13-cent per 1,000 gallon usage or 4.8 percent increase in the water rate and a 71-cent monthly increase or 7.5 percent increase in the sanitary sewer rate. This means that the average monthly residential water bill will increase $1.03 a month or from $19.49 originally projected to $20.52. The $19.49 figure includes an increase which goes into effect on July 1, 1990 to finance the Lake Gaston water project. It is the fourth of the increases spread over a four-year period.

The combined water and sewer bills for the average residential user per month would total $30.69 with the recommended increase and $28.95 with only the Lake Gaston increase.

At a Council work session, Warnstaff also recommended on increases in the minimum water bill from $3.35 to $3.60 for 5/8 inch meters which comprise 95 percent of all meters in the city.

Warnstaff said that the cost — for meter maintenance, meter reading, billing and capital cost — is there regardless of the amount of water used. Two years ago the city reduced the minimum fee from $3.45.

Warnstaff said that the water rates in Virginia Beach tend to be higher than they are in other areas of Virginia. Chesapeake has a higher rate. Reasons for this are the city's location in a coastal plain which makes water facilities expensive and the youth of the city. He said that most of the city's system has been built in the last ten to 12 years, leaving the city with a 25-year debt. However, the systems are designed to last 60 years, he said.

Generally, Warnstaff said, the "forecast is not very bright." He said that the nationwide trend is for increases in water prices caused in large part by the highest cost in treating water to meet federal standards.

Warnstaff said that he would prepare for Council a list of comparative cost rates in other localities.

The city now faces a revenue shortfall in fiscal 1991 of $3.1 million. With revenues anticipated at $51.3 million costs include operations and maintenance, $24.9 million; water purchases $13 million; pay-as-you-go funding, $2 million, and debt service 14.5 million.

Public Utilities is a self-supporting operations with revenue from the system supporting the cost. Warnstaff said that it is critical for the city to have a financially healthy water department when it goes into the bond market to finance the Lake Gaston project.

Since 1983, the water rate has increased from $1.62 per 1000 gallons usage to the current $2.51. Except for the 1983 increase, all the increases have been related to Lake Gaston or the Norfolk wholesale price of the water. With the fourth

Lake Gaston rate increase, the rate will climb to $2.69 on July 1, 1990, but with the additional general rate increase, the rate would be $2.82.

The monthly sewer rate has remained the same since 1983, $9.46, but with the recommended general increase, it would be $10.17 on July 1, 1990.

Warnstaff said that the lower number of new connections contributes to the projected revenue deficiency. Further impacting the utilities budget is the accelerated road program which usually necessitates the relocation of utilities.

The Public Utilities Department also has 71 water and 52 sewer projects in the five-year Capital Improvement program adopted recently. The cost of the utilities

Council Approves Development Services Center

By Lee Cahill
City Council Reporter

Developers may not have to play hopscotch any longer as they try to get city departments to review various aspects of development.

City Council approved the establishment of a Development Services Center to provide a focal point for individuals and development companies for obtaining construction permits and plan reviews. The object is faster service and a more comprehensive review.

To start the new department, $312,320 is being transferred from the budgets of several departments: Public Works, Planning, Environmental Management, Public Utilities and Fire, to the new department.

Only Councilman John A. Baum voted against the new department, saying that everytime something is reorganized the paper work gets worse.

The new department was recommended by a development review study group appointed in April to examine centralized development review systems in localities or similar size and growth patterns. The department will be implemented in phases beginning on Jan. 1.

Positions required for the Center, as well as the money, will be transferred from existing budgeted positions.

The cost for the period from Jan. 1 to June 30 will total $312,320.

Councilwoman Reba McClellan said that the city needs some control, some guidelines. For instance, she said, "I know what the engineering department will say but I think we have a higher concern than bricks and mortar." She said she was flabbergasted recently when someone in a civic club meeting said that a child has to cross four lanes of traffic to get to a park.

Carolyn Simpson Has Painted More Than 300 Reverse Paintings On Glass; Says Art Form Is Time Consuming

By Karen Dalrymple
Staff Writer

She's never taken an art class in her life, but College Park resident Carolyn Simpson has produced more than 300 reverse paintings on glass since the art form was brought to her attention in 1981.

"It intrigued me. I was looking for something a little different. I was very much surprised at the results I got. I found it relatively simple to develop some of the techniques," said Simpson, who has been artistically inclined since she was a child, but never knew how to use her talents.

image." During the 1700s, Simpson said, the ladies in the English courts used to do reverse paintings right along with their needlework. Unlike regular paintings, which are painted background to foreground with the highlights painted last, the reverse paintings are exactly the opposite, with the highlights painted first.

"Most nations have some form of this. It's very much folk art," she said.

Simpson's paintings, whose subject matter usually consists of florals, fowl, ducks and birds, are made of oil, enamel or foils and some are backed with fabric. She said her most popular painting is a cardinal in a dogwood tree.

It takes Simpson 12 hours, on the average, to paint a painting 8 x 10 or smaller, although she's painted some as large as 14 x 18. Her paintings sell for $12, for a small one to $50 to $75 for larger paintings.

"I've not made nearly what I've put into them," she said. "You have to keep them within a certain price range."

Sandbridge Sewer Project Left Out Of CIP

By Lee Cahill
City Council Reporter

Last minute appeals to leave the Sandbridge sewers in the Capital Improvement Program and to take Centerville Turnpike improvements out failed to sway City Council as it adopted second reading the ten-year capital budget and approved related appropriation ordinances and resolutions.

Council appropriated $139,636 for the first year (fiscal 1990) of the budget which is $16 million less than the proposed budget.

The revised ten-year Capital Budget of $1,481,270,915 is lower by $16,763,000 as a result of removing the Sandbridge Sewer project from the last ten years of the budget and placing it under times to be studied, and the reversal of the Salem Road project ($13,214,000).

Dan Diviney said that the residents "do not want that road (Centerville Turnpike); we don't think we need it." Council decided to keep the road in the program but to see that a berm was built in the first phase.

Charles T. Lane asked that the Sandbridge sewers be left in the program because the community is a Class I health hazard.

Helen McDonald, a pro-sewer advocate, said "there must be some reason no one wants us in there (in the CIP)."

Maxine Graham, who also supports sewers, said that Sandbridge was in the CIP in 1974, later deleted. Again in 1984, Sandbridge was in the CIP, and again deleted. It has been on and off for 15 years, she said. She said that residents don't know what effect the National Wildlife Refuge land acquisition plans will have on them, not what the land use plan for the area will be. "Make a headstart and give us some promise and help," she asked.

Although Sandbridge was removed from the budget, its place in the budget will be maintained so that no time will be lost if the project goes ahead with the sewer project.

Along with the budget, Council adopted a new real estate tax rate, increasing the rate per $100 valuation from 97.7 cents to $1.032 cents.

Council Cancels Several Meetings

City Council has cancelled the Jan. 15 meeting, which falls on the Lee-Jackson-King holiday.

Since Council also will have no meeting on New Year's Day, a meeting has been scheduled for Jan. 20, no regular meeting day, when items scheduled for the Jan. 1 and 15 meetings will be combined.

Other regular meetings for the month will be held on Jan. 8 and 22.

The Dec. 25 meeting also has been cancelled for the Christmas holiday. Items for that meeting will be scheduled for the Dec. 18 meeting.

The City of Virginia Beach will hold its 19th Annual Service Awards Program on Thursday, Dec. 14 at noon at the Pavilion.

The program is designed to commend municipal employees for service performed, to recognize that an employee's contribution grows each year he remains employed by the city, and to encourage career employment with the city.

Employees with 20 years of service or more will be recognized at the event, with awards being presented by Mayor Meyer E. Oberndorf and City Manager Aubrey V. Watts, Jr.

All full-time permanent employees are eligible for Service Awards. An employee's first award, a five-year pin, will be given after five years of continuous employment. Cash awards are given to employees with 10 or more years of service and are based on a percentage of annual salary.

The Service Awards Program has expanded considerably since its inception and is the total amount of money distributed as cash awards. This year, approximately 1,900 cash and pin awards will be given, with cash awards totalling approximately $300,000.

Percy Bly, General Services/Grounds Maintenance, will receive a 45-year award. Donald J. Craig, Police Patrol and Administrative Support, and Wilson Dozier, Public Works/Street Maintenance, will receive 35-year awards.

Send It To The Sun

There are so many clubs, organizations and groups in Virginia Beach that often go unnoticed. The main reason is probably lack of publicity.

The Virginia Beach Sun can solve those problems with a little help from you. Not many newspapers regularly publish social club news, civic league news or school PTA meetings. The Virginia Beach Sun does. Just get your information to us and we'll do the best we can to get it in the paper.

Pictures are also very important to The Sun. If your civic league had a picnic and you took some pictures, send them in! If your daughter was in a swim meet and you took a lot of pictures, we can use them! As long as the pictures are of local people, we can most likely find a place in the newspaper for them. Pictures can be black and white or in color, any size. Please make sure they are sharp, clear and accompanied with complete information. We can't use a picture if we don't know who's in it.

If you're not in a club, but you know somebody with an interesting background, let us know. Successful businessmen and women are always good targets for Personality Profiles and Just A Chats. Tragic stories with happy endings, or even not so happy endings, may be considered for feature stories.

Anyone with any writing talent who would like to try their hand at their own feature story, should certainly do so. We can't promise, but if it's good enough, we may consider publishing it.

The Virginia Beach Sun wants to work with you, but you also have to work with us. In order to have an article or press release published, it must meet our weekly deadline. All news must be submitted by Friday at 5 p.m. for the upcoming Wednesday's issue.

Try to make sure the articles are typed and double spaced. It makes it much easier on us and we don't want to misspell anyone's name.

Whether you drop the article off at our Sun office on Rosemont Road, mail it or hand deliver it yourself, make sure the name and phone number of a contact person is included.

If you know of anything newsworthy or want to spread the word about an upcoming event, keep The Sun in mind. We're a community newspaper and Virginia Beach deserves to know about its community news. — K.L.D.

Arts and Culture

Registration Opens For Centers' ArtSaturdays

The Virginia Beach Center for the Arts is currently conducting registration for the winter youth program "ArtSaturdays," held on Saturday mornings in January and February 1990.

ArtSaturdays includes visual and performing arts lessons for children ages five through 12. Two separate, four-week sessions are scheduled—one in January, with the theme "The Language of Art"—and another in February, titled "In the Mood."

Classes are organized into three age groups: ages seven to nine attend 10 a.m. to 12 p.m.; ages 10 to 12 attend from 12:30 to 2:30 p.m. An additional program for five- and six-year-olds has been created this year, held 10 a.m. to 12 p.m., in January only.

ArtSaturdays allows children to experiment with a range of media including painting, drawing, collage, jewelry-making, simple sculpture, and dramatics, or "theatre play." The program encourages youngsters to stretch their creative imaginations while facilitating enjoyable studio art experiences.

Tuition and materials for one month of ArtSaturdays is $40 per child (with a VBCHA family membership); and $50 for non-members. A limited number of scholarships are available for families with financial need. The deadline to register for January ArtSaturdays is Jan. 2, 1990. The registration deadline for February ArtSaturdays is Jan. 29, 1990.

For further information or a detailed brochure, telephone the Center for the Arts at 425-0000, or stop by the office at 22nd Street and Park Avenue, seven blocks from the oceanfront.

"Landscapes On Location At V.B. Center For The Arts

The Virginia Beach Center for the Arts presents Landscapes on Location in the Student Gallery Dec. 15 through Feb. 14. Organized by local artist and teacher Suzanne Stevens, the exhibit includes landscapes by over 20 artists, all of whom are students of Stevens' at the Center for the Arts.

A reception will be held on Sunday, Dec. 17, from 2 to 4 p.m. at the Center. Both the reception and the Student Gallery are free and open to the public.

Landscapes on Location includes two-dimensional works in oils, pastels, watercolor and other drawing media. Stevens is an area artist whose work is carried by Gallery 32 in Virginia Beach. She has taught classes in figure drawing and painting, portraiture, and landscape at the Center for over 10 years.

The Student Gallery is open Tuesday through Saturday, 10 a.m. to 5 p.m., and Sunday, 1 to 5 p.m. The Center for the Arts is located at 22nd Street and Park Avenue, at the west-bound entrance to the Virginia Beach-Norfolk expressway.

Telephone 425-0000 for further information.

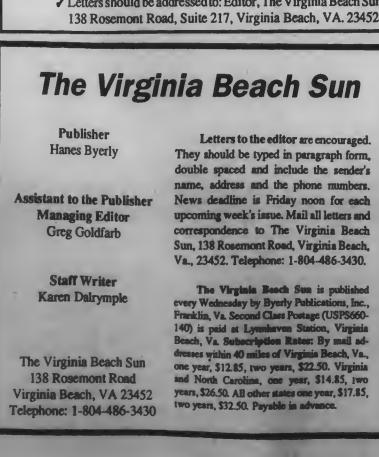

Henderson, Pops At Pavilion

Skitch Henderson and The Virginia Symphony Pops will present "Tevye," "Golde" and the sound of "Fiddler on the Roof" on Sunday Dec. 17 at 3 p.m. at the Pavilion.

Broadway artists Bob Carroll as the lovable patriarch "Tevye" and Marcia Rodd as "Golde" join the orchestra for a holiday "Tradition" of selections from "Fiddler on the Roof." Included are "Tradition," "Matchmaker," "To Life!" and "If I Were a Rich Man" among others. Both singers appear with

Henderson and the New York Pops in "Fiddler" roles before coming to Hampton Roads. Among Broadway credits for soprano Rodd are "Last of the Red Hot Lovers," "Shelter" (for which she received a Tony nomination) and "What a Lovely War." Carroll most recently returned from the national tour of "La Cage Aux Folles" and has appeared in "Fiddler on the Roof," "Fiorello," "I Do, I Do" and many others. The Virginia Symphony

How To Prevent Holiday Burnout This Year

The Mayor's Report

Virginia Beach Mayor
The Honorable
Meyeray Oberndorf

It's that time again. Thanksgiving has come and gone, and the December hustle and bustle is fast approaching. While this time of year is an exciting one for most of the Virginia Beach community, it can also be a time of significant stress. The fast pace, parties, shopping, and family gatherings can be fun but exhausting! How can we inoculate ourselves to prevent holiday burnout?

First, get organized. Make a list of the things that must be done and complete a few tasks each day. The key words are underlined to emphasize the importance of setting priorities. Avoid the trap of expecting too much from yourself and your family. It might be nice if you could do everything perfectly. But is this realistic? Pick and choose your battles. If you don't have the time and energy to do everything (and who does?), then be honest with yourself. Select the things that are most important and do them. Then sit back and take pride in your accomplishments rather than feel guilty about the things that you didn't have a chance to do.

Second, remember that you may need to say an important two-letter word — "No." Be kind to yourself and others. Rather than obligate yourself to activities that you'd prefer not to do, then simply say "No." I would rather be turned down than listen to the grumbling and resentment of someone who regrets his lack of assertiveness. If you don't set limits for yourself, don't expect others to do it for you.

Third, clarify roles. When families get together during the holidays, we sometimes imagine that our relationships magically will be perfect. Somehow the petty irritations we experience throughout the year will be suspended as we gather around the fireplace. Unfortunately, the holidays don't eliminate family stress but may in fact intensify it. Be realistic and keep your sense of humor.

Fourth, ask for help. You really don't have to do everything yourself and besides — martyrdom is not becoming. Don't set yourself up for failure by refusing to delegate to anyone you can. If you have the financial resources, consider purchasing help. Just because your mother always baked dozens of cakes, pies, and cookies every holiday doesn't mean that you must do the same thing.

City School's Major Curriculum Project Underway

The VBEA Report

By Clair Polley,
President of the Virginia
Beach Education Association

During the past four months, School Board members, the superintendent and central office personnel have been studying ways to improve the curriculum currently adopted by the Virginia Beach City Public School System. Now they are undertaking a major effort to prepare a comprehensive K-12 curriculum that will go into effect in the Fall of 1990.

This effort will involve 400 teachers, students, parents, administrators and School Board members. In preparation, School Board members and central office personnel have attended two inservices led by Regina Paul and Henry Brickell. These noted researchers from the Policy Studies in Education Organization have given recommendations on how to select the goals and objectives, select programs, operate programs, measure goals and objectives, and set standards for judging results. These researchers have recommended that the School Board actively participate in the development of the new comprehensive curriculum. Their recommendations include the following:

- The School Board should select the goals, determine what to accept as proof of learning and set standards from those offered by the superintendent and his staff.
- Involve the stakeholders: get advice from community residents, school staff, high school students and recent high school graduates.
- Once the goals and objectives have been determined distribute them to parents. Let parents know exactly what will be covered. Let parents know how they can be involved.

As these researchers stated often and school personnel know, curriculum is complex.

• Let teachers determine how they should teach the objectives. Allow and encourage a variety of methods, materials, and instructional strategies.

• Use local, state and national assets to evaluate every year. Have local objectives relate to a national test. Make sure that you use the information from the assessment process to make improvements in each subject in all grades if necessary.

As these researchers stated often and school personnel know, curriculum is complex. The task before the school system is immense. The plan to involve the stakeholders is especially important. Curriculum committees already in place will be an integral part of the process. Parents and students currently serve on the committees. The information from the surveys sent out by the Strategic Planning Group will be used to gather input from the community and recent graduates. Teaching personnel have been given applications.

Drugs: A National Problem Seeking National Solutions

By Lillian Youell,
Virginia Beach Constitution
Celebration Commission
Consultant

Tomorrow is Pearl Harbor Day. The sneak attack by the Japanese on December 7, 1941 mobilized the nation. Today drugs are bombarding our nation from every direction and now our National Government has geared up for the "war on drugs."

The second plenary session of the Law-Related Education (LRE) Seminar I attended in November focused on the drug problem in connection with the breakdown in the criminal justice system. The Honorable Reggie Walton, associate director of the Office of National Drug Control Policy of the Executive Office of the President, was the speaker. Prior to taking his present position, he served as associate judge on the Superior Court of the District of Columbia.

His solution to the drug problem is a long-range one. He believes the educational process is the key. With knowledge, most young people will make the right choice and say no to drugs. However, a balance is needed between enforcement to keep drugs away from kids and education to keep kids away from drugs.

He reasoned that the national government had to put together a national drug program because our most valuable asset is our children. Over 200,000 babies were born last year to addicts. Many of these babies became addicted. Many were also born with AIDS or were severely scarred or handicapped for life. Those who survive will often suffer physical and mental problems.

The backbone of families has historically been the woman, but Judge Walton pointed out that "crack" mothers neglect their children, often abandoning them without food or care. Strangely, statistics show that women have a greater affinity for "crack" while 80 percent of heroin addicts are men. As a result of parental drug use, child abuse is on the rise.

Drugs are literally killing our young people. Of the 375 homicides in D.C. last year, most were young black men. The criminal justice system is in shambles and crime is out of control. The Judge's major concern is that our fellow Americans should have all of the freedoms we have, but many Americans are virtually being held "hostage" in their own homes. They fear stay bullets due to crossfire in drug turf fights!

Lee Cahill's Virginia Beach City Council Report

Legal Action May Be Taken Against Chair Caner

George Hamar, a retired banker, has been caning chairs most of his life. He learned how at an orphanage in New York City, the oldest in the country and founded by the widow of Alexander Hamilton.

Placed in the orphanage at the age of two, he remained there until the age of 16 when he worked his way through high school. By the time he was 16, he said, he had made at least 1,000 chairs, making a nickel a chair.

So it was natural for him, when he retired four years ago from the Sovran Bank where he was an investment officer (before that he was an investment banker in New York) to take up his caning to fill some of the hours between 7 a.m. and 6 p.m. during the week when his wife was at work.

His workplace was his 4,700 square-foot $300,000 home at 4320 Ben Gunn Road in Bayside. That was the problem. A neighbor reported him to the Department of Permits and Inspections for operating a business out of his home without a permit.

Hamar said that the neighbor complained in retaliation for questions raised about the neighbor's lawn mowing business headquartered at the home. Business-related vehicles and other materials accumulated in the yard, Hamar said, and empty bags were dumped on the front lawn.

Now the city is considering legal action against Hamar for operating a home occupation without a permit.

Vice Mayor Robert Fentress, who himself had a chair caned by Hamar, brought up the subject at a Council work session Monday. He asked that the Department of Permits and Inspections look into the city's ordinances on home occupa-

Added Councilwoman Reba McClanahan, "I think you're letting that department make decisions we should be doing." She said that some occupations can be considered an art as well as a craft and that there are only so many chairs that a person can cane.

Councilwoman Barbara Henley said that the responsibility is Council's to clarify accessory uses and home occupations. She said the key is what is customarily done at home. She said that so many people do little things.

Councilman Harold Heischober said that Hamar has charged harassment by the zoning inspector.

Mayor Meyeray Oberndorf asked that the staff find out how many similar cases exist in the city, but City Attorney Les Lilley said that there is no way to find out. He said that any change made in the ordinance would have to affect the general public at large.

That's what Hamar claims is not being done now. He said that he has inquired at senior citizens craft shows at Pembroke and Haygood shopping centers ($57,000 was earned at these shows last year), at craft shows at the Kempville

Recreation Center and the Farmers Market and none of the exhibitors seemed to have conditional use permits for executing their crafts at home. If the city is going to enforce the ordinance only when a person has an unfriendly neighbor and allow him to continue when he has a friendly neighbor, then, said Hamar the city's action is arbitrary and capricious.

He said that before he applies for a use permit ($125) and business license ($50), and has a "big orange sign on my property to cane a few chairs," he would have his customer make out their checks to the Union Mission.

Among the charges delivered by Inspections, Hamar said, is that a commercial upholster delivered chairs to be caned. Hamar said he would pick them up himself and eliminate the trucks, which, he said, came in frequently. Another complaint was that he had deliveries of cane from UPS. Hamar said the packages are so compressed that it would be difficult to distinguish the package from a boxed dress.

He said that Inspection said it had received a lot of complaints, but would not itemize the complaints for him.

He said that the reason he is being harassed is "because I said I would not wag my tail. I will go national if necessary."

"I will never go to get a conditional use permit."

Scientists Seeking Beach Families With Disorders

Scientists searching for the genetic causes of neuromuscular diseases are seeking Virginia Beach families affected with the disorders for their studies. The need for such volunteers was recently announced by Muscular Dystrophy Association Chapter President Kathy Mallek.

MDA researchers are seeking additional families for ongoing studies of the inherited neuromuscular disorders: fascioscapulohumeral muscular dystrophy, limb girdle muscular dystrophy, Friedreich's ataxia, and the spinal muscular atrophy.

They are also looking for certain families affected by amyotrophic lateral sclerosis (ALS), or Lou Gehrig's disease. Although ALS is not considered a hereditary disease, between five and ten percent of cases occur in families with prior history of the disorder, leading researchers to suspect that at least those cases may have a genetic basis.

MDA-supported scientists at major medical research institutions throughout the world are working to locate and isolate the units of heredity, or genes, for a variety of neuromuscular disorders, through what's called "reverse genetics." Through this approach, a gene whose normal function isn't known can be located and isolated by analyzing genetic material from affected families for signs.

Called markers, these signposts indicate the gene's general location and enable researchers to focus intensively on that location until the gene is found. MDA researchers pioneered the successful use of reverse genetics in the discovery of the gene responsible for Duchenne muscular dystrophy.

The approach, however, requires genetic material from large numbers of both affected and unaffected members of families with histories of the disease being studied. Families participating in genetic studies are generally required to provide information on the family history of the disease and to give blood samples, which contain genetic material.

In some cases, individuals may also be asked to undergo physical examinations and tests. For further information, families affected by the neuromuscular disorders, and other interested individuals, should write or call: Donna Hooker, Genetic Research Coordinator, MDA, 810 Seventh Avenue, New York, New York 10019; (212) 586-0808.

MDA supports research worldwide into 40 neuromuscular diseases, including the muscular dystrophies (ALS, Friedreich's ataxia, Charcot-Marie-Tooth disease). It also maintains a wide-ranging patient service program, including a nationwide network of clinics, and supports public health and professional education programs.

MDA research projects are located at Eastern Virginia Medical School and MDA clinics are at Sentara Norfolk General Hospital.

Hospital Announces Programs

Virginia Beach General Hospital will offer a newborn care class on Saturday, Dec. 16 from 9 a.m. to noon in the Health Education Center. Certified childbirth educator, Joan Smith, R.N., will teach the class.

The newborn class is designed to assist parents in taking care of their new arrivals. The class covers umbilical cord care, bathing, circumcision care, bottlefeeding, diapers, stocking the medicine cabinet, infant safety and doctors' visits. A question and answer session will be held at the end of the class.

A fee is charged. For more information and to register, call the HealthQuest Line at 481-9141.

Virginia Beach General Hospital offers "Hearty Arteries," an adult fitness program, every Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday from 6 to 7 p.m. at the Tidewater Psychiatric Institute gymnasium. December programs will begin on Monday, Dec. 4.

"Hearty Arteries" is designed to help individuals achieve personal physical fitness and healthy lifestyle habits conducive to cardiac disease prevention.

Pre-registration is required. A fee is charged. For more information, call 481-8141.

Church

Foundry United Holds Cantata

The music ministry of Foundry United Methodist Church, 2801 Virginia Beach Boulevard, will present its annual Christmas cantata Sunday, Dec. 17 in the church sanctuary during the 11 a.m. worship service.

The cantata entitled "The Gift of the Ages" is an arrangement of traditional choral music combined with appropriate scriptural passages recounting the Christmas story. Director of Music, Carin Cowell has compiled the service which also includes tableaux by the youth of the church. Pianist Joan John and organist Nancy Nelson will be featured at the keyboards as Cowell conducts the 30-voice Chancel Choir.

Those participating as readers are Linda Brannum, Luanne Colby, Terri Wilner and Rev. Leonard Hazelwood.

This presentation is free and open to the public. For more information call 481-3391.

America is in a crisis situation. We are all affected. It is no longer a problem of innercities alone. The problem is now in almost every neighborhood. We the People need to review how this happened. Then, Americans must come to grips with the situation.

Judge Walton believes there are two major explanations for our current drug problem. He cites the breakdown in family structure and in the moral/value systems in our nation. Then, he cites the misinformation about drugs in the 1960s. It was reported then that cocaine was not addictive. Now, we know it can kill. Marijuana was considered not bad, but over a period of time it will affect the brain. People need to know the facts.

A lot of folks say we can't win this war. Some prominent people say we should consider legalizing drugs. They say we need only take profit out of drugs and point to prohibition of alcohol. Most forget that few teenagers used alcohol in those days. It was not a problem with adolescents as drugs are today.

Teenagers today will get drugs some way. Granted, there is a significant black market just as there was in prohibition days. Alcohol is now an accepted social way of life, but suppose you took out needles with heroin at a party. That would not be acceptable conduct. It is naive to think using drugs openly if legal would solve the problem.

Besides, legalizing drugs would send the wrong message. A greater awareness that drugs are destructive has recently brought a decrease in drug use in high schools. It is not acceptable conduct today though a few years back rock stars bragged about their usage. If legalized, it would have the greatest effect on the poor. In northeast D.C., billboards everywhere advertise liquor and cigarettes. The poor and minorities will have drugs pushed even more.

Judge Walton said, "The strategy announced by the President on Sept. 5 is a first step. We will beef up law enforcement. We have let the bands/pushers become the jailers, holding our cities hostage. People will become vigilantes unless law enforcement agencies restore order and take back our streets."

He hopes states will enact laws that teenagers with drugs will have their driving licenses taken away. He would deal harshly with lawyers who use illegal drugs. They should set an example, not ignore the law. Thus, they should be disbanded. But he urges us to be compassionate and remember that addicts are sick and need adequate treatment.

The U.S. is now working with an international community. We need to stop entry of drugs from other countries, but at the same time, we must also stop the growing and producing of drugs inside our country.

While the war against drugs needs to be waged on all fronts he concluded his remarks as he began with his assertion that only through education can victory in this "war" finally be achieved.

Preparatory meetings are already taking place and the full scale process will begin in January. The groups will examine the current curriculum and then revise and reorganize language arts, mathematics, social studies and science for the Fall of 1990. Also being studied are the art, music, foreign language and some A.P. course curriculums. All other programs will be studied during the 1990-91 school year. Vocational education will also be studied but most of the work is already done because the programs have been developed on a competency based model. These working groups will attempt to establish a global perspective to the subject matter and be sure that the specific objectives are tied to an assessment process that may include one or more evaluative instruments.

The purpose of this major curriculum project is to create better schools. The active involvement of the school staff, parents, students and other community members will offer a unique opportunity. Collaborative decision making about programs, goals and objectives will increase involvement and commitment to a quality educational system. Active dissemination of the curriculum to parents will help them understand the total school program and of the importance their role in student success. The possibilities seem endless when educators and parents work to help students become more successful in school. A great deal of energy and effort will be involved in this project. A great deal of work will be required if the project is to succeed. The School Board, the school professionals and the school community members all have a stake in the results.

If you enjoy baking and have the time, then go to it. But if you don't, then be smart and enlist someone else's help. Will the products be as perfect as your own? Probably not, but they will be "good enough" and you'll be in a better frame of mind to enjoy them.

Fifth, the holidays do not give you permission to ignore your diet, exercise, and sleep regimen. Maintain good health patterns, especially in the area of exercise — a good stress reducer. Don't overcharge yourself. If you don't take care of yourself, you won't be able to take care of others during the holidays.

Finally, what if you face the holidays alone? What if family visits and rounds of parties aren't part of your holiday plans? For many people, the holidays can be a time of loneliness and depression. We may be reminded of earlier losses and disappointments. Don't wait for the holiday blues to attack. Plan your involvement with the world around you. Take a good look at the community. There are literally hundreds of opportunities to share the spirit of the holidays with folks who need your help.

Volunteer some time to make the holidays a little brighter for those less fortunate — a sick child, a lonely senior citizen, a homeless family. Give the most valuable gift that you have — a little of your time.

So the holidays are coming, and you're going to be ready. Take control of your time, your resources, and your energy. Develop your plans and stick to them. The holidays stressful? Sure, but relax, you'll survive.

TBA Installs New Officers

Vincent A. Napolitano took office as president of the Tidewater Builders Association at the recently held 37th Annual Presidents' Ball and Installation of Officers. He succeeds Stephen J. Magula Jr.

The incoming president is head of Napolitano Enterprises Inc., a home building and land development company founded by his family in 1977.

Napolitano holds a bachelor's degree in business from Virginia Polytechnic Institute and State University.

A member of TBA since 1977, Napolitano has served on a number of committees and has chaired Virginia Beach Municipal Affairs and Public Relations and Finance Committees. He is a director of both the state and national Home Builders associations and is a lifetime member of the Spike Club.

His community involvement includes charter membership in the Virginia Beach Jaycees, and he is a past director of the United Way Family Center.

Michael P. Rashkind moves up the leadership ladder from second vice-president to first vice-president.

General managing partner of R & J Associates Inc., Rashkind is a graduate of Randolph-Macon College. His company is involved in land and commercial development, and apartment construction and management.

Rashkind has been a TBA member for 18 years and was first named to the board of directors in 1985. In 1989 he chaired the Public Relations Committee and he is in his second year as chairman of the Home Builders Association of Virginia Legislative Committee.

Rashkind, his wife Lee and two children live on Kline Drive.

Vernon M. Duncan assumes the office of second vice-president.

A licensed professional engineer with a degree from Virginia Polytechnic Institute and State University, Duncan is president of The DeAnne Co. He founded the company in 1977 and it specializes in single-family and multifamily construction as well as land development.

Duncan has been a TBA member for 14 years and was first appointed to the board of directors in 1987. He chaired the 1988 Scholarship House Committee and the 1989 Horizons Committee. In 1987 his company built the Scholarship House.

Duncan, his wife Betty and two daughters live on Reaser Drive.

Richard L. "Tuck" Bowie will assume the associate vice-president seat for the second year.

Executive vice-president of Talbot & Associates Ltd., Bowie graduated from Virginia Military Institute with a degree in civil engineering. Talbot & Associates is a 20-year-old multidisciplined firm offering services in architecture, civil engineering, surveying, environmental planning, landscape architecture and interior design.

Bowie has been a TBA member for 12 years and was first appointed to the board of directors in 1986. He is currently a member of the governmental affairs, political action and Virginia Beach municipal affairs committees. He is also a member of the Cape Henry Rotary Club in Virginia Beach.

Bowie, his wife Sandy and two children live on Oker Court.

Albert E. Viola will take office as treasurer.

Viola is president of Viola Building Corp., a building and development firm founded in 1984. He also is vice-president of operations for the Christopher Companies, a development and building firm located in Tidewater and Northern Virginia. A former land planner, Viola has a degree in urban and regional planning from East Carolina University.

A member of TBA for 12 years, Viola was first appointed to the board of directors in 1987. This past year he chaired the Chesapeake Municipal Affairs Committee and his company built the 1988 Scholarship House.

Alvin D. Woods has been elected secretary.

A graduate of Old Dominion University with a degree in business administration, Woods is regional executive officer of Sovran Bank, N.A. He has been with Sovran since 1970.

Woods has been a member of TBA for 13 years and was first appointed to the board of directors in 1988. He has sat on a number of TBA committees and for the past three years has coordinated the association's annual summer golf tournament. He is also a member of the Development Committee of the Medical College of Hampton Roads Foundation.

City Not So Rich; Dropped Below Per Capita

By Lee Cahill
City Council Reporter

Virginia Beach is not so rich after all.

Fact: Its per capita income may be higher than it is for Hampton Roads as a whole, but it is lower than the state's. It used to be higher in both comparisons, but by 1987 Virginia Beach started to drop below the state average per capita income.

In a report at a City Council work session, Assistant City Manager Dean Block presented that and other information indicating that the city will have to work hard to avoid a degradation of services in the future.

Block, who oversees the budget, said, however, that the present financial level of services is "very good." The major policy decisions of 1985/86 addressed most infrastructure needs, the report finds, but the trends in revenue and service demand growth are "divergent and not good."

The prognosis for the future is predicted on a slowing of growth on which the city had depended in recent years for its prosperity, a possible decline in the defense budget and the reduction in financial aid from the federal and state governments.

The prognosis for the future is predicted on a slowing of growth on which the city has depended in recent years for its prosperity.

The report, entitled "Time of Challenge" and subtitled "Era of Limits," finds that the city needs to expand its economic development because residential construction does not pay for itself. City Manager Aubrey V. Watts Jr. pointed out that with the tax base now exceeding $15 billion it requires $150 million in new construction to move the growth rate up just one point. Block pointed out that the city has a substantial amount of housing assessed at less than $7,000 which brings in less revenues than it costs in city services.

Block noted that the largest dollar value of new construction in the city in any one year was $650 million.

Knowing where the city is now, said Block should help Council make better decisions for the future.

For the 1990-91 fiscal year, the study recommends holding the line on property taxes, but this could be done only with the cooperation of all agencies and the School Board.

Per capita costs of the city operations have remained essentially level since 1986, according to the report, when adjusted for inflation. The school budget per pupil, however, has increased steadily in the past decade by more than 67 percent in real dollars.

The report is presented mostly in a series of graphs with some showing projections through 1995.

The study finds that the demand for services has increased more rapidly than the population, and some of this increased demand stems from the drop in federal and state reductions in services, Block said.

CCO Holds Annual Christmas Dinner

The Independence Junior High School Madrigal Singers were the special guests at the Virginia Beach Council of Civic Organizations' 30th annual Christmas dinner, held last weekend at the Cavalier on the Hill.

New CCO officers were also installed. Herb Taylor will succeed Ron Makela as president. Dean Williams replaces Taylor as first vice-president. Maury Hackson succeeds Williams as second vice-president. Laurie Clinton will remain recording secretary.

June Morton succeeds Jackson as corresponding secretary. Buddy Depree succeeds Ken Palmer as treasurer.

New directors are: Gene Moore, Lee Banks, Joe Burroughs, Sandy Tainter, Bill Rockwell and Robert Krebs. Out going directors are Jim Guion, Carol LaHamer, Frank Chebetar and Ernie Ball.

The functions featured a welcome and introduction of special guests by Makela. The invocation and pledge of allegiance was given by Banks. Williams introduced the guest speaker, Mayor Meyera Oberndorf. Makela recognized the retiring officers and directors. Williams and Oberndorf installed the new officers and directors. Remarks were made by the new president, Taylor, and outgoing president, Makela.

Special guests included the mayor, and Reba and Glenn McClanahan. Reba is a councilwoman and Glenn is a state delegate to the General Assembly. Also, former Virginia Beach mayor Robert Jones.

The plant is expected to provide electricity requirements for 10,000 homes and will generate direct revenue to the city of a minimum of $10,000 a month over the next 22 years.

Earlier this year Council adopted a resolution opposing the installation and/or operation of private sewage treatment facilities that discharge wastewater into waterways of the city under certain conditions. Monday's resolution specifically mentioned Sandbridge which on Jan. 10 filed an application with the State Water Control Board for a 40,000 gallons per day discharge into Shipp's Bay, a tributary of Back Bay.

A decision of the city zoning officer that the use was not allowed in an AG-1 and AG-2 Agricultural Zoning Districts were overturned by the Board of Zoning Appeals. The Board was later supported by the Circuit Court.

The Department of Health has no objection to the permit.

Chamber Of Commerce Supports College But Says Capital Costs Not Practical

By Lee Cahill
City Council Reporter

Virginia Beach City Council members want to start pushing now for a state-supported undergraduate college located the city while the Hampton Roads Chamber of Commerce — Virginia Beach, has recommended concentrating on graduate level studies.

William Halloran, executive director for the Virginia Beach Chamber, told Council that the Chamber is not opposed to the Council's proposal for an undergraduate school in the city, but said that the capital costs approach suggested in the city's legislative package may not offer the citizens the optimal use of their tax dollars.

Among the city's legislative proposals for the 1990 General Assembly is a request for the purchase of land for a college in the city.

The Chamber's viewpoint on the proposal was one of three areas in the legislative package pinpointed by the Chamber.

The Chamber also:

• Supports a regional financing authority for road construction, a concept forwarded by the Southeastern Virginia Planning District Commission which has not drawn enthusiastic response from Council members.

• Believes the Farm Bureau's recommendation to oppose the inclusion of any lands in Virginia Beach as part of the Chesapeake Bay Preservation Act that do not drain into the Bay should be a formal component of the city's recommendation to the legislature.

Halloran said that the Chamber believes that significant undergraduate resources in the area are already available and have been identified by the Mayor's Committee on Economic Development Strategic Planning. Tidewater Consortium, Virginia Wesleyan, CBN University and numerous university extensions in the city. He said that graduate level facilities are more beneficial for attracting business to the city. The committee has found, he said, that many cities and regions have exploited graduate level education for economic development purposes in California, Texas, Massachusetts, North Carolina and George Mason University in Virginia.

Mayor Meyera Oberndorf disagreed. She said that Virginia Beach needs to compete in the world market and at a meeting in Atlanta recently, she said, the first thing the French asked was how many four-year colleges the cities had and what fields were offered in the curriculum.

Councilman John D. Moss noted that Northern Virginia already anticipates a shortage of spaces in local colleges, and "if we don't start now we'll never get there."

Halloran said that the Council is not against the idea, but against the cost.

Councilwoman Reba McClanahan said that some parents are convinced a shortage of spaces exist here now. She said she has talked to parents whose children can't get into the University of Virginia or Virginia Tech, and "they can't all go to Old Dominion. The push is on for higher education. How that progresses will be determined in the immediate future." She said that Virginia Beach has a tremendous student population and they are good students. She said that Northern Virginia has put the pressure on. "I'm sure anybody on Council can tell you about the students in the top percentages who can't get in."

"If we don't get in now while the decisions are being made," said Oberndorf, "Virginia Beach will once again be the biggest in name only."

Councilman Albert Balko pointed out that a parallel existed in the establishment of the Eastern Virginia Medical School. The biggest opposition was from the University of Virginia Medical School. The attitude was, "We don't want anybody else; we're here; we'll take care of it."

Halloran replied that the resources are finite. "We want to be sure the resources are exploited."

The legislative package will be placed on next Monday's Council agenda so that the public will have a chance to express their views.

The Chamber's support of a regional financing authority is based on three premises — a $150 million shortfall in highway projects that are unfunded, intra-regional highway projects that are beneficial to a number of cities throughout Hampton Roads, and because of solution into the funding shortfall will rest ultimately on localities.

Some concern has been expressed by Council members that Virginia Beach would not receive from the Authority as much as it contributes. The Chamber stated that while Virginia Beach will generate great deal of the tax dollars, of the $1.6 billion in intra-regional projects such as the Southeastern Expressway and the Hampton Roads Bridge Tunnel, both beneficial to the Beach, represent $900 million.

The Chamber has requested the city to at least endorse the authority in its legislative package and at a minimum agree to support a joint study resolution to work out important details.

Councilman John D. Moss objected to the assumption of the SEVPD that the localities would take over the responsibilities relinquished by the state. "Transportation is a state issue," he said. "I think it (the authority) is a bandaid." He said that he has not seen public support for the concept.

"I don't think we can afford to take state responsibilities on," said Councilman William D. Sessions Jr. "What are you going to do if the public won't pay tolls?" He said that the idea was moved too rapidly.

"We're constantly wrestling with the 'What happens if the state doesn't come through?'" said Councilwoman Barbara Henley. She said it happens with schools and other services.

"The state has to live up to its responsibility... I want to know what we're going to do with growth management... I want to do something better than what we did in the past. All these things are tied together."

Moss said he wanted land use to determine the traffic impact. "I have strong reservations about what's needed in a regional authority."

Councilman Albert Balko said he was not anti-region, that he just wanted to see "how much we're going to get back."

City Wins Technology Achievement Award

The City of Virginia Beach was presented the 1989 Public Technology Achievement Award recently at a National League of Cities conference in Atlanta. Mayor Meyera E. Oberndorf accepted the award on behalf of the city for its Methane Energy project.

The project won top place in the Energy category. The sponsor is Public Technology, Inc. (PTI), a non-profit, membership organization that serves as the technical arm of the National League of Cities and the International City Management Association. PTI is dedicated to improving services and increasing efficiency through the use of technology and management systems.

Only 13 national awards were given and Virginia Beach won the coveted honor for its new methane recovery plant which opened last spring, and is located by a private enterprise, produces revenue for the city while reducing ozone-damaging emissions. The facility was installed at no expense to the city and is saving the equivalent of 150,000 barrels of oil per year.

P. Wade Kyle, the city's Waste Management administrator and coordinator of the methane project, said, "this entire project represents a win-win situation for everyone, from the public utilities company to private industry to the consumer. It's an example of conservation at its best."

The plant is expected to provide electricity requirements for 10,000 homes and will generate direct revenue to the city of a minimum of $10,000 a month over the next 22 years.

Hotels/Motels Of Area Cities Join Forces To Form HRHC

By Flo McDaniels
Special To The Sun

Hoteliers from local communities have recently joined forces to form the Hampton Roads Hospitality Coalition, "HRHC."

This coalition will combine the legislative efforts of the Hotel/Motel Associations from each of the eight cities. Although each individual association does take an active role in community planning, this new coalition will provide a stronger and combined effort among the localities.

Councilman John D. Moss noted that Northern Virginia already anticipates a shortage of spaces in local colleges, and "if we don't start now we'll never get there."

Halloran said that the Council is not against the idea, but against the cost.

Councilwoman Reba McClanahan said that some parents are convinced a shortage of spaces exist here now.

She said she has talked to parents whose children can't get into the University of Virginia or Virginia Tech, and "they can't all go to Old Dominion. The push is on for higher education. How that progresses will be determined in the immediate future." She said that Virginia Beach has a tremendous addition to providing a tremendous amount of tax revenue, it provides countless job opportunities. The HRHC plans to forge a stronger and more productive relationship with the city councils and state government agencies to effect greater industry growth and prosperity to Virginia.

Kent Tarbutton, the newly elected chairman of the Hampton Roads Hospitality Coalition, also serves on the Virginia State Hotel/Motel Association Board of Directors, and is currently president of the Norfolk Hotel/Motel Association. He heads the firm of Tarbutton Associates, an east coast hotel/motel management company, as well as Equitable Real Estate Services, a real estate tax assessment contesting service.

Tarbutton has announced a legislative breakfast on Thursday, Dec. 14, at 7:30 a.m. at the Holiday Inn Executive Center on Greenwich Road. He plans to present the coalition's legislative platform for 1990 at that time to interested parties, including invited local and state dignitaries.

Council Opposes Sandbridge Sewer System

The latest development in efforts to build a Sandbridge campground operator to a private sewage treatment plant took place Monday when City Council passed a resolution by a vote of 7-1 opposing the installation of the sewage system at Surfside at Sandbridge. Councilman John L. Perry dissented and Vice Mayor Robert V. Fenster and Councilman Harold Heischober and W.D. Sessions Jr.

were absent.

Earlier this year Council adopted a resolution opposing the installation and/or operation of private sewage treatment facilities that discharge wastewater into waterways of the city under certain conditions.

Monday's resolution specifically mentioned Surfside which on Jan. 10 filed an application with the State Water Control Board for a 40,000 gallons per day discharge into Shipp's Bay, a tributary of Back Bay.

A decision of the city zoning officer that the use was not allowed in an AG-1 and AG-2 Agricultural Zoning Districts were overturned by the Board of Zoning Appeals. The Board was later supported by the Circuit Court.

The Department of Health has no objection to the permit.

The latest development in efforts to build a Sandbridge campground operator to a private sewage treatment plant took place Monday when City Council passed a resolution by a vote of 7-1 opposing the installation of the sewage system at Surfside at Sandbridge. Councilman John L. Perry dissented and Vice Mayor Robert V. Fenster and Councilman Harold Heischober and W.D. Sessions Jr.

Special Report

How To Prevent Hypothermia This Winter

More Virginia Beach people die in winter cold waves than in hurricanes, tornadoes, or any other weather phenomena. Many of these deaths can be attributed to hypothermia - an abnormally low internal body temperature caused by exposure to cold.

At greatest risk are the elderly, who probably account for nearly half of all hypothermia victims. According to the Center for Environmental Physiology, a national nonprofit research organization which studies and reports on the effects of heat and cold stress, tens of thousands of older Americans literally "freeze to death" in their own homes each year. These deaths are a result of cool indoor temperatures, not prolonged exposure out-of-doors. Therefore, older adults in the nation's sunbelt are not less vulnerable than their northern cousins, although it is less expensive to heat their homes.

Factors such as living alone, low incomes, poor diet, other illnesses, limited physical activity, and use of alcohol or certain types of prescription drugs place many older Americans at greater risk. Hypothermia can also worsen pre-existing conditions and diseases in older people. Many deaths are initiated by hypothermia, although another disease is ultimately listed as the cause of death.

How It Develops

Hypothermia is caused when the body loses heat faster than it can be replaced. Normally, the body conserves its heat by narrowing blood vessels in the skin, reducing the flow of warm blood near the surface in favor of heating vital organs in the body "core." This process is our main defense against cold.

When skin blood flow is reduced, the skin becomes cool or cold. The resulting discomfort prompts us to put on more clothing or seek warmer surroundings. When warm clothing is used as an artificial barrier against the cold, the body is not forced to use its natural defense mechanism of reducing skin blood flow. Clothing is the key to comfort and survival in a cold environment.

However, many older individuals have a diminished skin sensation. They are often unaware they are even cold. If left alone, they can develop hypothermia in the course of a few days.

Symptoms

It is difficult to recognize hypothermia. Some symptoms are the same as those of other illnesses, including diabetic coma, stroke, or heart disease. Other symptoms are conditions not unusual in elderly people; for example confusion, disorientation, or reduced mental clarity. These become progressively worse as the body temperature falls, and the victim may not be able to reliably relate, or even be aware of, what is happening.

Other signs to look for are:

- a change in appearance or behavior during cold weather.
- uncontrollable shivering, or no shivering at all.
- stiff muscles, particularly in the neck, arms, and legs.

- slow and sometimes irregular heartbeat; slurred speech; shallow, very slow breathing.
- weak pulse, low blood pressure.
- cool or cold skin, particularly on the stomach, lower back, and extremities.
- poor coordination and problems with balance.

Treatment

Hypothermia is a serious, complicated condition requiring professional medical assistance. A hypothermic should be treated in a hospital.

If you suspect hypothermia, take the person's temperature. Turn the victim directly to a hospital if it is below 95 F (35 C). If you must wait for emergency help to arrive, you can prevent further heat loss by wrapping the person in a warm blanket, making sure you cover the head and neck. Above all, stay calm and handle the person very gently.

Do not rub or massage arms, legs, or feet; do not give the person alcohol or drugs; do not raise the legs or place a hot water bottle on the feet; and do not give hot drinks or hot food.

The person must be warmed slowly. If you don't have blankets, quilts, towels or other wrapping, lie close to the person, using your own body heat to help keep the victim warm.

Prevention

Hypothermia can be prevented. Homes should be adequately heated and insulated. Heating costs can be kept down by closing off unnecessary rooms and using only one or two. Financial help to pay heating bills is available through state and local assistance programs. Check with your local energy office or utility for information. Also, many utility companies offer home energy audits to help you reduce fuel costs.

Dress warmly, both during the day and while sleeping. Several layers of lighter weight clothing - or blankets - are better than a single, heavy layer. You can remove or add layers as needed. Don't wear tight clothing that restricts the blood flow to hands and feet. Consider wearing a hat, even indoors. Nearly half your body's heat is lost through the head.

Also, be sensible when going outdoors. Dress warmly and keep your head, hands, and feet dry. While down-filled coats and windbreakers are warm, the only material with insulating properties, even when wet, is wool. Pace your outdoor activities to avoid getting overheated.

Eat sensibly. Well-balanced meals, with high energy foods, keep your body's defenses up.

Most importantly, keep in touch with relatives and friends, particularly during cold weather. Many communities have phone-in or personal visiting services.

Hypothermia is an insidious killer that can be prevented with a little thought and care by each of us.

Food Services Gives VWC $10,000

The Tidewater Food Services Foundation has given $10,000 to Virginia Wesleyan College to establish a scholarship fund in memory of Marvin E. "Mel" Foose, a well-known businessman in the Tidewater food industry before his death in September 1982.

The scholarship will be used to assist a student enrolled in Virginia Wesleyan's Liberal Arts Management Program (LAMP).

This Foundation was established in 1968 by members of the Tidewater Food Service Executives Association, the local affiliate of the International Food Service Executives Association. Foose was instrumental in the establishment of the trust fund, along with Costas "Gus" Maroulis of Norfolk, trustee and current chairman of the Foundation. Other trustees are John Frigoli and Samuel J. Martone, both of Virginia Beach, who, along with Maroulis, were prominent members of the Tidewater food industry for many years. All three men are now retired. Marvin Foose's widow Kathryn lives on John Silver Road.

Funds from the Foundation have been used over the years to assist young people interested in the food industry. This is the first time that a scholarship has been given to a college to assist a student majoring in the field of business management.

Olds, Blanding Stand Out At College

Randall Olds, a sophomore offensive lineman from First Colonial High School was recently named to the Lees McRae College All-Region X first team. Kevin Blanding, a freshman running back, from Bayside High School, was named to the All-Region X second team.

Olds, who is 6'2", 261 pounds, started this year for the Bobcats and recorded a team-high 74 "pancake" blocks and graded out at 79.6 percent which was just 1.4 percent off the record. "Pancake" blocks occur when the offensive lineman completely smothers the defensive player and any grade above 75 percent is considered excellent.

Blanding led the Bobcats in rushing with 815 yards on 115 attempts (7.1 yards per carry) and scored a team-high 11 touchdowns.

Tabernacle Baptist Homecoming Set

Tabernacle Baptist Schools will hold its annual homecoming activities on Saturday, Dec. 16 at 7 p.m.

The Alumni basketball games will begin at 5:30 p.m. with the old grads playing the even year graduates. There will be princesses and escorts from each class leading to the moment of the crowning of this year's homecoming queen.

Then, the winning alumni team will face this year's undefeated varsity team.

A concession stand will be open. The public is invited.

Avoiding Treacherous Highway Traveling

When winter storms strike Virginia Beach, highway travel can become treacherous. Because of the state's snowfall patterns and snow consistency, highway conditions are often more hazardous than in the snowbelt regions to the north.

Many of Virginia's snowstorms begin as freezing rain or sleet. Snow often follows, leaving a hidden layer of ice underneath. These dangerous conditions are compounded by the consistency of snow that usually falls. Unlike the dry, powdery snow that occurs in colder regions, Virginia's snow is often wet and extremely slippery.

With these factors in mind, your best bet is to stay home when severe winter weather strikes. However, business or holiday plans often make winter travel necessary. If you must venture out, the following tips may make your journey safer.

Before the cold weather hits, be sure your car is in good running order and is properly serviced. Have a reliable mechanic check your battery, antifreeze, wipers and windshield washer, ignition, and thermostat. Good tires are very important. Not only will you be safer, but in many jurisdictions, there are heavy fines if you are stranded on a snow emergency route without snow tires, chains, or all-weather radials.

Plan long trips carefully. Listen to weather reports and traveler's advisories and keep an alternate route in mind. Let someone know where you are going and what time you plan to arrive. Travel in daylight, use major highways, if possible, and try not to travel alone.

Before you start out, clean snow and ice off all parts of your car — windows, hood, roof, trunk, and lights. Snow left on the car could affect visibility once you start driving.

Keep your gas tank as full as possible, especially if you're unfamiliar with roads or passing through rural areas. A full tank prevents gas line freeze up, and also adds weight for better traction.

Even if you restrict your winter driving to short, local trips, certain supplies can help in an emergency. Always keep basic items like a windshield scraper, battery booster cables, a tow chain or rope, a bag of sand, a blanket, and a flashlight in your car.

For longer trips, you may want to add a transistor radio (with extra batteries), a first aid kit, road maps, some nonperishable food, matches and candles.

Don't overdress when driving. Even or short trips, your clothing should be loose-fitting and comfortable. After the car has warmed up, take off heavy outer clothing, but pull over to the side of the road to do it. Don't try to struggle out of your coat while driving.

If you should get caught on the road during a winter storm, keep calm. Give some indication that you're in trouble — turn on your flashing lights, raise the hood, or tie a cloth from an antenna or door handle.

Whatever you do, stay in the car. Don't leave the car to find shelter or a telephone unless you can actually see one close by (really close — yards away). Disorientation comes very quickly in a blowing snowstorm.

For heat, turn on the car engine for brief periods. To avoid deadly carbon monoxide poisoning, always leave a downwind window open slightly and make sure the exhaust pipe is clear of snow when the engine is running.

If you are caught unprepared, there are many items in the car you can use. Papers and maps can be crumpled up and stuffed into your clothing for added warmth. Rugs and removable seat covers can be used for added insulation. Huddle with your

Easing Snowstorm Hardships

Snow flurries can suddenly turn into a vicious winter storm, causing us to measure a snowfall in feet instead of inches. Being isolated in your home can be very real possibility. By making certain preparations now, Virginia Beach residents can ease the hardships you and your family could suffer. Here are some tips to help you at home during severe winter weather.

Two necessities are food and heat. Stock an emergency supply of natural, quick-energy foods that allow the body to produce its own heat efficiently like peanut butter, raisins, and other dried fruits. The amount would depend on the size of your family, but you should have enough food for several days to a week. Even if you are within walking distance of a grocery store, their supplies may dwindle if roads are closed to supply trucks. Include foods that require no cooking unless you have a camp stove or other portable cooking unit.

Make sure you have adequate ventilation when using a portable cooking unit. Never burn charcoal inside. No amount of ventilation can diffuse the deadly carbon monoxide given off by burning charcoal. If you're using your grill, cook outside.

First Night Virginia Beach Not "Ho-Hum"

The Mayor's Report

Virginia Beach Mayor
The Honorable
Meyera Oberndorf

There's a new way to usher in the first year of the last decade of the twentieth century. It's First Night Virginia Beach and I, along with City Council of Virginia Beach, invite you to join the party.

A New Year's Eve celebration, unrivaled in size and scope in Hampton Roads and open to all of Hampton Roads, is planned for the Virginia Beach Pavilion.

First Night Virginia Beach, sponsored by Virginia Beach Events Unlimited and the City of Virginia Beach, will bring in the new year with a non-alcoholic, family oriented, evening of entertainment emphasizing the arts and community.

From 7 p.m. til midnight on New Year's Eve the entire Pavilion will become a theater; a concert hall; the circuit; a cabaret; the Palladium; Grauman's and Birdland all rolled into one dizzying display of sight and sound.

First Night is definitely not a "ho-hum," be there if there's absolutely nothing else to do" affair. It will have all the excitement of a real Broadway production including the midnight count down and fireworks finale.

The celebration will give children a chance to participate in an event usually reserved for adults only. Puppet shows, story tellers, and performers will delight youngsters, as will face painters, balloon magicians and vintage cars.

First Night Virginia Beach, sponsored by Virginia Beach Events Unlimited and the City of Virginia, will bring in the New Year with a non-alcoholic, family oriented evening of entertainment.

The Willies, a popular modern rock band, with The Stranglers as the supporting act, will headline the young adult entertainment in the "Rock Box" — a heated tent in the parking lot of the Pavilion.

The crowds will be ready to dance in the New Year to the wide variety of groups which will play at First Night. Nite Cruise will furnish the top 40 band while the popular Dick Crist and his Orchestra will bring back the big band sound.

Earlier that evening, Walter Noona and the Big Band of the Virginia Beach Pops will perform a special new Year's Eve concert in the Pavilion Theater.

Tips For Parents Of Grade School Children

The VBEA Report

By Clair Polley,
President of the Virginia
Beach Education Association

Since the Virginia Beach Education Association is a local affiliate of the National Education Association, we receive flyers, brochures and publications dealing with education issues almost daily. The following suggestions come from a brochure entitled A Success Guide For Parents of Grade School Students. I thought several of the suggestions were good enough to reprint below.

How can you, the parent, have a positive effect on your child's school-work? Here are some suggestions to consider:

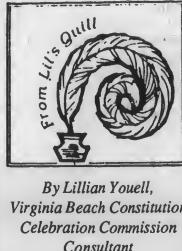

- Come to school and meet your child's teacher. You are welcome. Parents' support and frequent communication helps children learn.
- Ask your child what happened in school each day. If your child says "nothing," don't give up. Ask questions about specific activities.
- Become familiar with school regulations and school practices so that you will know what's expected of your child. If you have questions or concerns, discuss them with the principal.
- Help your child see that school attendance is important and desirable.
- Make TV watching a constructive force in your household. You might give your child an "allowance" of TV time and promote high-quality programs. Watch television with your child and discuss what you've just watched.

Set aside time each day for homework. This helps develop the discipline most children need.

- If your child announces that he or she "hates" a certain subject, find out why. Then enlist the teacher's help in changing the negative feelings.
- How can you help your child with homework? Here are a few suggestions that make homework a valuable link between the school and your home:
 - Make sure that your child has a good place in which to study. It should offer plenty of room to spread out materials, the right kind of lighting, and a comfortable chair.
 - When your child is doing homework, make sure the entire family gives that activity as much respect as possible, so the student is not disturbed unnecessarily.
 - Set aside the same time each day for homework. This helps develop the discipline most children need.
 - Establish rules for using the telephone, stereo, and TV during homework time.

Constitutional Rights Of Students In Conflict

By Lillian Youell,
Virginia Beach Constitution
Celebration Commission
Consultant

December 15 is Bill of Rights Day. On that day in 1791, Virginia was the key state to ratify the first ten amendments, making them a part of our Constitution. While the term "bill of rights" does not appear in the U.S. Constitution, it is commonly used to designate those first ten amendments.

At the Law Related Education Seminar I attended in St. Louis last month, I chose a session which explored current developments in federal constitutional law. The presenter was L. Anita Richardson, Office of the Corporation Counsel, City of Chicago, who also serves as an adjunct assistant professor of law at John Marshall School of Law in Chicago and Northern Illinois University. From the latter, she received her J.D. degree, magna cum laude. In addition, she holds a Doctor of Philosophy degree in sociology and social psychology.

Richardson discussed a number of cases dealing with students' rights under the First, Fourth and Eighth Amendments. She stated that many colleges and universities have implemented regulations, including punishment, aimed at controlling threats, intimidation and harassment directed at students because of their ethnic origins, sex, etc. Students charged or punished under these policies have naturally raised First Amendment challenges.

In evaluating the constitutionality of these policies, Richardson suggested that certain questions should be asked. What is being regulated - pure speech, symbolic speech, or conduct? She explained that conduct is more easily subject to regulation than speech. Passive symbolic speech is more akin to pure speech and, thus, is difficult to regulate. However, active symbolic speech, such as a demonstration, is subject to time, place and manner regulation.

Some speech is not protected at all by the First Amendment. She cited as examples speech which is used to facilitate a crime, such as a threat of bodily harm or so-called "fighting words."

She added that there may be more latitude to regulate pure and passive symbolic speech in college housing because of the privacy rights of the affected students and the school's obligation to provide secure accommodations. There may be latitude also in the classroom where the free speech right could be weighed against the likelihood of disrupting the mission of

Candy Cane Express Visits Schools, Distribute Candy

Candy Cane Express, a touring musical program, recently presented a dramatization of "Frosty the Snow Man" at the official Christmas tree lighting at Mount Trashmore Park.

The group also visited the 48 elementary schools in the Virginia Beach School System to perform for kindergarten and first grade students. The holiday show is provided by the Virginia Beach Department of Parks and Recreation Performing Arts Unit.

At the completion of each show, the performers collected letters to Santa from children in the audience and distributed candy canes.

United Way Agency Changes

Doris S. Sturridge, president of the Board of Directors of Catholic Family and Children's Service, Inc. of Tidewater Virginia, has announced approval of the name change of this United Way Agency to Catholic Charities of Hampton Roads, Inc.

The name, "Catholic Charities," is expected to provide this agency greater visibility in its efforts to continue to address the growing needs of the citizens of Hampton Roads.

In 1988, this charity served the genuine needs of 6,100 clients. Services include counseling, child welfare, family life education, student assistance, adoption, foster home care and workshops/seminars.

The Norfolk Branch of Catholic Charities was opened on April 17, 1933. Presently, the agency has expanded its services through four additional offices located in Virginia Beach, Williamsburg, Peninsula and the recently merged office in Portsmouth.

In March of 1946, the agency's name was changed to Catholic Family and Children's Service and a separate incorporation was obtained. The agency was then licensed as a child placing agency by the Commonwealth of Virginia.

2,500 to 3,000 Girl Scouts from as far as North Carolina and Gloucester gathered together recently for the annual Christmas lighting ceremony at Mount Trashmore.

Every year, usually the first weekend in December, the girls bring their flash lights with colored cellophane over the top of the light.

This event has taken place at Mount Trashmore for the past six years. Before Mount Trashmore, they gathered at Princess Anne High School Field.

Once the lighting takes place they begin singing Christmas carols. In addition to the lighting ceremony and songs each girl is asked to bring a can of food to donate to the local food bank. This is the way the Girl Scouts would like to wish Hampton Roads a Merry Christmas!

The ceremony lasts 20 to 30 minutes.

the class.

In Tinker v. Des Moines Independent Community School District (1969), the Supreme Court held that students could not be punished for passive symbolic speech. In so holding the court noted that students do not shed their constitutional rights of speech and expression at the schoolhouse gate. However, these rights are not absolute and school authorities can limit speech or expression that materially disrupts class work, involves substantial disorder, or invades the rights of others.

Attempts to regulate protected speech in open forum areas are probably doomed. The time, place and manner of speech can be regulated as long as the regulation is not based on content. In the case of public secondary schools, the rights of those students are more limited than those of college or university students. Secondary schools have greater responsibility for the safety and well being of all students.

In Bethel School District v. Fraser (1986), the court upheld the suspension of a student who, at an assembly, gave a sexually suggestive nominating speech for a student running for vice-president of the student association. The court thus made it clear that the First Amendment rights of secondary school students are not the same as those of adults.

Citing the 1988 case of Hazelwood School District v. Kuhlmeier, Richard said the court held that school officials may regulate the content of a student newspaper, published as part of the curriculum, if the regulation is "reasonably related to legitimate pedagogical concerns."

Richardson then turned her attention to the Fourth Amendment, and cited the 1988 Supreme Court case of Schall v. Tippecanoe County School Corporation. Random, suspicionless urinalysis searches of athletes and cheerleaders does not violate the Fourth Amendment because of the overriding governmental interest in preventing drug and alcohol use by young people. In earlier cases, urinalysis searches for marijuana were enjoined because of the excessive intrusion of the searches, as where a urine sample was taken while someone was watching.

Richardson has written extensively on the Fourth Amendment. In her article, "Why the Fourth Amendment Doesn't Stand Still," in The Judges Journal, summer 1987, she writes, "The Fourth Amendment's prohibition against unreasonable searches and seizures embodies a unique balance between conflicting value: the individual's right of privacy and society's right to security. Privacy, the right to decide who may enter one's personal domain, when and for what purpose, and for how long, is balanced against the interest of society to pursue wrong-doers, whoever they are wherever they seek refuge."

Her presentation concluded with a discussion of the capital punishment of minors. It appears that the Eighth Amendment prohibits the execution of minors who were under the age of 16 at the time of committing a capital offense. In Thompson v. Oklahoma, 1988, the Supreme Court left open the possibility that minors under the age of 16 could be sentenced to death for a capital offense if the legislature expressly considered the eligibility of minors for the death penalty by setting a specific minimum age at which the death penalty could be imposed. The Oklahoma statute did not specify a minimum age.

In Stanford v. Kentucky and Wilkins v. Missouri, (1989), the court held that the Eighth Amendment does not preclude execution of persons 16 and 17 years of age at the time of the capital offense. Youthful age must be considered as a mitigating factor in determining the appropriateness of the death penalty. Eddings v. Oklahoma, (1982). Mental retardation is not a per se bar to imposition of the death penalty, but must be considered as a mitigating factor in determining the appropriateness of the death penalty. Perry v. Lynaugh, 1989.

After two centuries, the Bill of Rights is still the subject of debate, controversy and reinterpretation.

It's safer than trying to rig ventilation inside that may not be adequate.

Try to keep an adequate supply of fuel in your home. Regular supplies may be limited by storm conditions, so use it sparingly. You can conserve fuel by keeping the house cooler and by closing off little-used rooms.

Severe winter weather does not necessarily involve a storm. Extremely low temperatures can cause problems, too.

In an emergency, an alternative heating source would keep at least one room warm enough to live in. This could be a coal, wood, or oil-burning stove, fireplace, or space heater. However, use emergency heating equipment carefully. Proper ventilation is essential, and use extra caution to prevent fire. Keep a fire extinguisher handy. Help from the fire department may be delayed or unavailable. Learn how to maintain and refuel alternative heating units safely. A local dealer or your fire department can help you.

If your heat goes out, keep water pipes from freezing by wrapping them in pipe insulation or newspapers covered with plastic to keep out moisture. Let each faucet drip a little to avoid freezing. Know how to shut off the water coming into the house — as a last resort, you may have to shut off the main valve to keep the pipes from bursting.

Dozens of other performers, including harp players, cloggers, a jazz flute choir, a barbershop quartet and a gospel church choir will be scattered throughout the building.

An original neon art display by artist and ODU Art Department Chairman Ken Daley and a Magnet School "Sculpture in Motion" will also highlight the evening.

The celebration will culminate with a mini-parade going around the Pavilion and to 19th Street just before midnight. The first Night Singers and Dancers, a troupe assembled just for the evening, will perform the finale as the clock strikes 12.

As honorary chairman of the event, I will be hosting the opening ceremony at 7 p.m. in the Pavilion Theater. I'm very excited and pleased to have the opportunity to welcome you personally at that time.

The price of an admission button is only $3 and children three and under are admitted free.

Butons may be purchased at Leggett Department Stores, all Gene Walters' Marketplace, all branches of Commerce Bank, Tastee Unlimited, Hampton Roads Chamber of Commerce/Virginia Beach, Neptune Festival Office and the Pavilion.

This is the beginning of a new tradition for the residents of Virginia Beach and the entire Hampton Roads area, bringing families and friends of all ages together for an evening of good, old-fashioned fun.

I hope you'll join us! In the meantime, please call 498-0215 for more information or to receive a copy of the program.

homework time. This will mean better concentration.

• Review spelling words with your child, perhaps once before going to bed and again in the morning. The same goes for other types of memory work such as multiplication tables, arithmetic drills, state capitals, and so on.

• When your child is writing a school report, show that using information from several sources is better than just relying on one book. Help your child get acquainted with the wide range of available sources.

• Go over your child's homework, expressing both your expectations and support. Make suggestions about spelling, grammar, punctuation, or the accuracy of solutions, but don't do the homework for the child.

I hope you find these suggestions useful as you work with your children and the school because student, parent, teacher — we're all in this together.

Judy Wilder, recreation supervisor, and Chuck Thomas, Parks and Recreation program facility specialist, set up toys at the Samaritan House and at Hope Haven.

Toys Donated To Samaritan House, Hope Haven

In planning for the 1989 Neptune Festival, Wilder came up with the idea of creating a playground on the beach. She wrote to an equipment manufacturer in Ohio, asking for a donation. The company agreed, with the stipulation that the toys to be donated to a charity afterwards.

report may correct the misrepresentation that Virginia Beach is so rich that it can take care of everything . . . We're just better managers.

To the extent that resources trail service demand over the long run, the report concludes that better efficiency must occur to avoid service degradation.

Although per capita appropriations for some services such as police, fire and libraries have increased in the past five years, waste collection costs have remained the same because of a more efficient operation (automated trash refuse pickup).

That may change, too, in the future, Oberndorf said, because while recycling is environmentally desirable, it costs more.

Block said that the city is becoming increasingly dependent on its own resources and at the same time is handicapped by the inflexibility of the revenue structure. The real estate tax represents a greater proportion of revenues than in the past.

Revenue projections through 1995 show that the rates of growth are far smaller than the typical experience, Block said.

The report finds that the city's policy framework of apparent critical priorities is unlikely to be sustainable over the planning period within the existing revenue structure. More flexible and equitable revenue sources are needed and state, the report says, must address its fair share of school, indigent health and other programs.

The greatest uncertainties lie in the area of school operations needs and funding.

If the city is dealing with a decline in the defense budget, Block said, "the city must protect our share" which translates into keeping as many ships in Norfolk as possible. Councilman John A. Baum said of this attitude, "I don't think that is totally noble."

Although the report recommends holding the line on property taxes, it also recommends monitoring real estate tax rates in the region over the next five years.

New user-based fees and charges are recommended as one way to create more flexibility in the revenue structure. The report also recommends challenging the General Assembly to finance its mandates and responsibilities, and for the city to carefully examine school requests in light of a balanced allocation of funds. Also recommended is an avoidance of city pick-up of state responsibilities.

Whatever the city does when and if the financial situation becomes tight, it should not scimp on maintenance and replacement investments. Block said that is the area where cities cut back first and it's readily apparent when looking at ill-kept police cars and other equipment.

"It's better to plan from a position of strength," noted Councilman William D. Sessions, Jr. And the forecast for the 1991-95 fiscal years is intended to help the city do that.

In fact, Abraham Lincoln is quoted at the beginning of the report —

"If we could first know where we are, and whether we are tending, we could better judge what to do and how to do it."

Letter To The Editor

Do We Deserve Less?

Editor:

Secretary of State James Baker recently called for free and open multiparty elections everywhere.

At home, by requiring that the winner have a majority of the votes cast, the U.S. Constitution allows only two effective parties. With only two parties, each strives to be as bland as possible. Neither party has a clear political ideology and there is no room for any dissent.

As a result, neither party is actually a political party. Each is just an office getting machine for ambitious and frequently unscrupulous people. Once in office, these people are then free to vote with the most generous lobbyist.

If no candidate receives a majority of the votes cast, the election goes to the House. We all know how the House will decide, certainly not for a third party candidate. Our presidential elections are even less democratic than congressional elections. The electoral college actually decides the winner.

For years, I went door to door urging people to vote. All to frequently, I was told that the people didn't like either one of those "crooks" and weren't going to waste their time. If eastern Europeans deserve democratic, multiparty elections, do we deserve less?

We need a constitutional amendment allowing the candidate with the most popular votes to win; or perhaps allowing a runoff election between the top two. We need to rid ourselves of the two corrupt machines that have easily shared power and "spoils" for decades, bringing forth several new and authentic political parties.

In 1789, our government was the most democratic in the world. In the last 200 years however, our democracy has slowly eroded while other countries have moved ahead. Must we continue to stagnate while even Eastern Europe becomes more democratic?

City To Host Nationally Sanctioned Offshore Power Boat Race On May 12

The City of Virginia Beach has announced that it will host Virginia's first nationally sanctioned, American Power Boat Association offshore power boat race, on May 12, 1990.

An exciting and increasingly popular racing sport, the 75-mile race along the Virginia Beach coastline will feature four classes of boats up to 60 feet long capable of achieving speeds in excess of 150 mph as they compete for championship points and a cash purse of $50,000.

The race, which will run between Rudee Inlet and Fort Story, is part of the southeast regional Gold Cup Championship series, which originated in Florida in 1985. Virginia Beach is expected to attract more than 50 of the nation's top amateur and professional ocean power boat drivers, including past and current national champions.

The sanctioned points race will be run under the direction of Florida-based Offshore Power Boat Racing Association, Inc. (OPBRA), and sponsored by the Eastern Virginia Offshore Racing Association (EVORA).

The Virginia Beach race will be the second in a series of six races which will determine OPBRA's 1990 Gold Cup Champion.

The 1990 Gold Cup series begins in Panama City Beach, Florida, and includes races in Miami, Fort Lauderdale, Islamorada, New Smyrna Beach and Naples, Florida. The Virginia Beach race is being underwritten by EVORA and through the sale of official programs and sponsorships, with some assistance from the city, said Jim Phillips, EVORA's president.

The City of Virginia Beach Department of Convention and Visitor Development will provide up to $10,000 to assist EVORA securing the public safety personnel, equipment, and professional staff necessary to stage and conduct a successful race, said Department Director James B. Ricketts. In addition, Virginia Beach Pavilion will also host the postrace awards ceremony and dance, as well as provide a portion of the surrounding parking grounds which will serve as the racing crews' boat storage and dry pit areas.

During the race weekend, participating boats will be launched at Owl's Creek and proceed through Rudee Inlet to the Atlantic Ocean for prerace trial runs and the actual race day course. The official race course will start off of the 24th Street Park area, and run along the ocean front from approximately 4th Street to 8th Street.

EVORA, in conjunction with the Lynnhaven Kiwanis Club, will conduct race weekend events to raise funds for the local March of Dimes and Straight, Inc., a drug and alcohol abuse rehabilitation organization in Chesapeake.

Parking Restrictions Enacted

Parking restrictions are enacted on residential streets due to traffic hazards, such as parking on a curve or narrow roadway. Restrictions may also be enacted if 85 percent of residents on an affected block request parking restrictions.

Residents frequently request parking restrictions near schools, where students park on residential streets causing traffic hazards, congestion, loud disturbances, littering and hindrance of access for mail and garbage service.

The city's Traffic Engineering division will install a No Parking Sign if at least 85 percent of residents on the block agree to the restrictions by a signed petition. The entire block will then be restricted with no exceptions. After approval of a request for parking restrictions, a sign will be installed within approximately four weeks.

For additional information, contact the Traffic Engineering division at 427-4491.

Seatack Special Emphasis Area

The Oceanfront and the adjacent Seatack areas of Virginia Beach have been designated by City Manager Aubrey V. Watts, Jr., as Special Emphasis Areas.

In July, the Virginia Beach City Council adopted a Certificate of Occupancy ordinance which enables the city manager to designate areas where the inspection of rental property is required prior to occupancy by tenants.

The areas are chosen based on the percentage of rental properties, the physical condition of the dwellings and their eligibility for federal and state housing assistance. The inspection and certification of rental properties prior to occupancy is an effort to improve the quality of housing in these areas.

For further information on the program, contact the Department of Housing and Neighborhood Preservation at 463-9511.

Residents Can Schedule Neighborhood Meetings For Kid Watch Program

Virginia Beach residents are encouraged to contact Officer Rick Taylor in the Police Department's Crime Prevention Bureau to schedule a neighborhood meeting to discuss bicycle, pedestrian and skateboarding safety. Information distributed is directed to all age groups.

After a neighborhood completes the safety program, a "Kid Watch" sign is installed at the main entrance to the neighborhood. In order to qualify for a sign, at least 80 percent of the children between the ages of five and 15 who live in the neighborhood must be present during the safety meeting. Additional signs may be purchased by the neighborhood from the city. The City of Virginia Beach does not provide children at Play signs.

To schedule a "Kid Watch" program, contact Rick Taylor at 427-4146.

Aubrey Watts Recognized By American Water Works Assoc.

The Virginia Section of the American Water Works Association recently presented Virginia Beach City Manager Aubrey V. Watts, Jr. with a Distinguished Service Award. The award acknowledges over 10 years of service rendered by Watts to the Virginia Section.

Watts has served as section chairman and as chairman of the National Management Development Committee. As chief advocate for the water utility management programs, Watts was instrumental in the establishment of a continuing education program at Virginia Polytechnic and State University for water industry practitioners. This program is only offered at four universities in the United States.

The American Water Works Association is a technical and educational organization comprised of representatives of all aspects of the water industry including utilities directors, water suppliers, consulting engineers, and companies that manufacture products for the industry. The association's mission is to foster a strong drinking water industry and provide the highest quality of drinking water to the public.

The Distinguished Service Award recognizes the personal and professional commitment Watts has made to enhancing the drinking water supply through strengthening of the water industry.

Virginia Beach Wins National Public Technology Award

The City of Virginia Beach recently received the 1989 Public Technology Achievement Award at a National League of Cities conference in Atlanta.

Mayor Meyra E. Oberndorf accepted the award on behalf of the city for its Methane to Energy project. The project won top place in the Energy category.

The sponsor is Public Technology, Inc. (PTI), a non-profit membership organization that serves as the technical arm of the National League of Cities and the International City Management Association. PTI is dedicated to improving services and increasing efficiency through the use of technology and management systems.

Only 13 national awards were given and Virginia Beach won the coveted honor for its new methane recovery plant which opened last spring, and is located at the city landfill.

The plant, owned and operated by a private enterprise, produces revenue for the city while reducing ozone-damaging emissions. The facility was installed at no expense to the city and is saving the equivalent of 150,000 barrels of oil per year.

P. Wade Kyle, the city's waste management administrator and coordinator of the methane project, said, "this entire project represents a win-win situation for everyone, from the public utilities company to private industry to the consumer. It's an example of conservation at its best."

The plant is expected to provide electricity requirements for 10,000 homes and will generate direct revenue to the city of a minimum of $10,000 a month over the next 22 years.

January Recycle Saturday Targets Holiday Recyclables

The Virginia Beach Clean Community Commission is sponsoring a post-holiday Recycle Saturday on Jan. 6 from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. at Pembroke Mall, Constitution Drive parking lot.

Items can be recycled include aluminum cans, glass bottles and jars, newspapers and certain kinds of plastics such as milk and water jugs, one-, two-, and three-liter soda bottles, laundry detergent bottles and motor oil and car care product bottles.

Bottles and jars should have lids removed and be rinsed prior to submission to the recycling center.

Reynolds Aluminum will pay a two cents per pound bonus on all aluminum. All aluminum donations will benefit Virginia Beach homeless. Free Clean Community Commission t-shirts will also be given to every 20th person bringing items to be recycled.

January's Recycle Saturday is sponsored by the Virginia Beach Clean Community Commission, Tidewater Fibre, Reynolds Aluminum, Atlantic Paper Stock, and Chambers Development/Bay Disposal.

For additional information, contact the Clean Community Commission at 427-4100.

Sun, Sand And Santa Welcome Holidays To Beach

The Mayor's Report

Virginia Beach Mayor
The Honorable
Meyera Oberndorf

Not many cities are as fortunate as Virginia Beach to have the unique combination of sun, sand and Santa to kick off their holiday season! The 1989 "Holidays At The Beach" program officially kicked off Virginia Beach's holiday season with two weekend days full of activities for the entire family.

It all began with a Christmas tree and yule log lighting ceremony at the Beach Garden Park, located off of Baltic Avenue on Holly Road. This was the first year the city had the lighting of a yule log.

The Adam Thoroughgood House, in true colonial fashion, brought a piece of its "brand" to help us begin this historical tradition. The grand finale of the night for all present was a ground display of fireworks concluding with a large set piece of a snowman with sunglasses, the logo of Holidays At The Beach.

There were over 400 people in attendance, which was more than double the attendance last year.

The next day festivities continued with the second annual Holidays At The Beach parade, which included marching units, floats, characters and, of course, everyone's favorite Santa Claus! After the parade, the many spectators, made up of mostly families, entered the Virginia Beach Civic Center to enjoy a variety of family entertainment, holiday foods, crafts and to have their picture taken with Mr. and Mrs. Santa Claus!

Hopefully, you and your family were among the many who enjoyed this year's program. If not, plan not to join in the festivities next year.

The Holidays At The Beach program began as a brainstorm of the Virginia Beach Convention Marketing Advisory Committee. The idea was to create a holiday event which would draw tourists and the local community to the resort area during what is traditionally referred to as the "off season."

Holidays At The Beach has grown during the last three years as an event which provides free family entertainment opportunities for our citizens to enjoy and which helps to create a festive environment in the oceanfront during the holidays.

How Much Pay Should Virginia Beach Teachers Receive

The VBEA Report

By Clair Polley,
President of the Virginia
Beach Education Association

How much salary should a career teacher receive? How long does it take to become a career teacher? These were the questions pondered by VBEA representatives at a training session conducted by salary expert David Helfman from the Pennsylvania State Education Association. The answer to these questions brings out the stark contrast between salary schedules currently being used in most school divisions in the country and compensation plans that are tailored to the teaching profession.

The career salary suggested by teachers, which approximates (10 vs 12 months) career salaries of other professions with comparable training and preparation, was $55,000. The average length of time teachers believe that it takes to become a career teacher is 10 years. Currently, the highest salary or career salary that a teacher without an advanced degree can earn in Virginia Beach is $37,762. The current salary schedule requires a teacher to have taught 20 or more years to achieve that career salary. Below is a comparison of two schedules for selected years.

What is:	What should be:
$23,125	$25,000
$24,184	$40,000
$27,245	$55,000
$32,386	$55,000

$37,762 year 20+ $55,000

As a parent about to send a child off to college, which compensation plan would seriously encourage you to recommend teaching as a career? Few parents are recommending the teaching profession to their children because they know that teaching not only does not pay much but that it is becoming more demanding each year.

The most recent increases in salaries have had a positive impact on students selecting teacher education in college. Research indicates that most of these students are first generation college students. Second and third generation college students are much more likely to look beyond starting salaries and consider lifetime earnings and career advancement opportunities.

The Longest And Shortest Nights Of The Year

By Lillian Youell,
Virginia Beach Constitution
Celebration Commission
Consultant

Within a week, we will observe the longest night of the year, or the shortest day of the year if you prefer to look at it that way. Then, we will spend one of the shortest nights of the year, if past experience is a yardstick.

Dec. 22 is the "winter-solstice" - the day the sun's vertical rays reach the southernmost point on earth, and winter begins in the Northern hemisphere. As an old, make that former, teacher of English, I thought it would be interesting to check the etymology of solstice and winter.

Latin students should know that "sol" means sun and "stibium" is the past participle of stand or stop. Thus, solstice is one of two points at which the sun's distance from the celestial equator is greatest. It occurs around Dec. 22 and again around June 22.

Because the late Dean May Keller of Westhampton College taught a course in Anglo-Saxon in the 40s, it was a required course for English majors. Consequently, I had to take that class. But, alas, I remember only one Anglo-Saxon phrase, which means in current English, "Beowulf is my 'wet season.' Why not a word for 'cold season?' Besides, most seasons in England are wet ones."

Obviously, equinox means "equal night." The earth travels in orbit around the sun, tilted about 23 degrees on its axis. The equinox occurs when the sun crosses the equator and night and day are of equal length. To refresh your memory, the vernal equinox is the beginning of spring in March and the autumnal equinox begins the fall season in September.

But back to winter, in which we now find ourselves. Prepare for a long winter night's rest on Friday - the longest night of the year - because two nights later, you may lose sleep. Don't believe that wonderful line about the children all nestled asleep in their beds? From my vast experience with children and now grandchildren, I can attest to the fact that they are so excited about Christmas, they can hardly sleep a wink on Christmas eve.

To make matters worse, they won't wait for dawn to come but wake everyone quite early so the "ceremony" can begin. Now I understand a comment my mother made during a visit when our boys were young. Having rocked the youngest for what seemed hours, she finally was able to put him

Councilwoman Nancy Parker said that she did not think the roads should be looked at as an issue all by itself. She said that the state and federal government should take more of a share of the load.

Councilman William D. Sessions Jr. said that he would love to have the state and federal governments pay the way, but that this wasn't happening. He said he supported the regional authority.

Bert Dale, of Seaboard Road was the only speaker in opposition to the TDR proposal. He said that the concept was premature and vague and misunderstood by the property owners. He said that anyone in the rural areas could be asked on any given day what the TDR stands for and "You'll get a blank stare." He said people ask him where they can buy a lot north of the green line because they can't afford the 20 acres needed to build south of the green line.

He said that the Back Bay Pungo people have no newspaper, but the farm bureau has one in which the TDR was endorsed.

He also criticized the information in a paper published by Henley. He said that one article says that 12,000 TDRs would be available at $9,450 a lot. "Who's going to guarantee that $9,450?" he asked.

Under TDR, development would be discouraged in the rural southern end of the city. But to compensate property owners for the land which might be sold for development, they would be allowed to sell rights to development which they possess, for development in other areas. Where those areas will be and how they will be developed are among the issues yet to be addressed.

Another question still unsettled is whether the rights will be sold in perpetuity or whether there will be a time limit on the development freeze on the lots on which rights have been sold.

Dale said that the consultants have presented false scenarios. "$65,000 for one acre is a joke." He said that he recently sold a 3.50-acre lot for $64,000 "and I was lucky to get that price."

Moss said that there are more unanswered questions than answered. Among the key ingredients are a clear identification of receiving areas (where the development will be placed) and whether the transfers will be in perpetuity. Without the provision for perpetuity, he said, the legislation would be worthless. "How can you get double credit (for land)?" He said that if the property can be developed 25 years down the road, development will only be postponed and the issue would not have been addressed.

To the claim that legislators will be cool to the idea without a limit on the legislation, he said that if it requires that concession to be heard by the General Assembly, the city is being held hostage by a bad concept.

He said he was willing to support the proposal but that the perpetuity aspect would have to be a fundamental part of the legislation.

Henley said there is a large amount of misconception about TDRs. She said that each locality has to construct a program for itself, and the program will not happen quickly.

Wherever TDRs have been successful, Moss said, perpetuity has been included in the program.

The resolution adopted by council omits any mention of a time limit or perpetuity. It asks that the General Assembly adopt enabling legislation that would allow localities by ordinance to adopt a transfer of development rights program.

Later steps will focus on expanding TV advertisement in selected markets and targeted tourism publicity programs and are aimed at maintaining the city's market share in a highly competitive environment.

Watts said he expects to have the advertising firm selected early in 1990.

John Parmelee, who has announced that he will run for council in the May election, opposed the expenditure. He said that the proposal is an effort at undoing what some have labeled a lack of leadership.

He asked why the Greekfest commission can't be trusted to come up with advice and suggested waiting until the commission released its report.

He said that some people are saying it would be better to spend the money to help the business persons who suffered losses during the Labor Day weekend.

CivicPendleton Child Service Opens

An opening ceremony for the Pendleton Child Service Center Chesapeake Day Program was held recently at the Edwards-Wilson Center at 2107 E. Liberty Street.

The Pendleton Child Service Center operates on a joint power agreement to serve Virginia Beach and Chesapeake residents. A special appropriation to the Pendleton Child Service Center by the Virginia General Assembly has allowed the day program to open in Chesapeake.

Following an informal luncheon, Chesapeake Mayor David I. Wayne, Dr. Arthur Butler, director of Special Education Services for Chesapeake Public Schools; Chesapeake Assistant City Manager for Human Services Clarence V. Cuffee and Virginia Beach Assistant City Manager for Human Services Hector A. Rivero participated in a ribbon cutting ceremony.

The day program will operate in a classroom at the Edwards-Wilson Center. It is directed toward reeducating school age children in Chesapeake who have adjustment difficulties such as inadequate self-control, immaturity, failure to complete school work and social isolation. Children are referred to the program by parents or teachers, and are rotated back into their regular class after approximately 12 to 16 weeks. The program involves children, their families and their teachers in the readjustment process.

Approximately one-third of the children served by the Pendleton Child Service Center are from Chesapeake, with the remaining two-thirds from Virginia Beach. In addition to the day program in Chesapeake, the Pendleton residential facility in Virginia Beach treats children from both cities.

For more information, contact Pendleton Child Service Center Director Norris Phillips at 425-6692.

NSU Professors Honored By CASE

Two Norfolk State University professors who live in Virginia Beach have been cited by the Council for Advancement and Support of Education (CASE) for their contributions to the lives and careers of students.

Annie Barnes and Chimezie A.B. Osigweh recently were recognized as honored nominees in the annual CASE Teacher of the Year Program, which last year drew nominations from more than 350 institutions of higher learning. This year about 400 institutions nominated 518 candidates.

Each year, CASE presents one National Professor of the Year award, one Canadian Professor of the Year award, and 40 State Professor of the Year awards. The winner of the Professor of the Year award received a cash prize of $5,000 and national media recognition for his or her institution. The top Canadian professor receives media attention and a $1,000 cash award.

Osigweh, a professor of management at NSU and an NSU faculty member since 1983, has earned international acclaim as a researcher in the fields of business and industrial relations, spanning areas as diverse as management, international business, labor relations, organizational communication, problem solving and international relations.

A professor of anthropology and sociology, Barnes, a native of Sunbury, N.C., has authored several books on the black family and is a recognized authority in the areas of ethnicity, social organization, race relations, the black family and kinship system, black women and research skills.

Earlier this year, Osigweh was selected by the State Council of Higher Education for Virginia as one of the 13 faculty members from the state's public and private col-

Holiday Museum Activities Set

The Virginia Marine Science Museum has announced the following activities during Christmas week:

Between 1 and 3 p.m., slide and video shows, in addition to hands-on activities, will be presented. All holiday programs are free with admission to the museum.

See the fish in the Chesapeake Bay Aquarium between 1 and 3 p.m. on Tuesday, Dec. 26. Identify the fish, ask questions and watch the fish being fed at 3 p.m. Interested visitors are invited to make a fish print to take home.

"Travel Back in Time: Fossils of Tidewater" will be the topic on Wednesday, Dec. 27. Learn about the geological history of this area, identify local fossils and discover how they are clues to the past. There will also be a fossil hunt for children.

Sharks will be discussed on Thursday, Dec. 28. Sharks return to the museum in an afternoon of films, videos and hands-on investigations. Visitors can safely meet a great white face-to-face, stick their hand in a tiger shark's mouth and examine a predator to roam the oceans.

Lear about the snakes that inhabit Tidewater. Hands-on activities include meeting the museum's green snake and special activities for children.

For more information on the holiday week programs call 425-3476.

VWC Students Host Christmas Party For Kids

Resident students at Virginia Wesleyan College recently hosted 50 students, ages 5 to 11, at a Christmas party. The children were selected by the Salvation Army. The children enjoyed food, games, decorating a Christmas tree, singing carols, breaking a piñata, a visit from Santa and opening gifts from the students.

The students and the children both enjoyed the party.

Freshman Sarah Mattis and Jamina Jones, 6, share a hug.

In addition, the dropout rate for teachers continues to be problematic. While beginning teachers approach their jobs with enthusiasm and tenacity, it still takes a number of years to become a consistently proficient teacher. Consequently, just about the time a teacher really gets good and becomes a polished professional he realizes that he is still only half way to career status. This forces one of two career paths - out of the profession or into administration. A skilled, talented teacher should not have to consider either.

In the next three to five years, the transition to career-focused salary schedules must be accomplished. Not only would it be appropriate for the current teacher corp, but more importantly, replacements for the current glut of baby boomers who chose teaching as a profession, must be willing to select teaching as a profession. And unless career compensation is drastically increased, tomorrow's brightest and best will not select teaching.

School divisions committed to excellent teaching will begin to either accelerate teachers through their salary schedules and/or compact the schedules so that career status is achieved much sooner. For the sake of our nation's economy, school systems must start restructuring teacher compensation so that the best will replace the best teachers America has ever had.

There have been and are many people involved in making Holidays At The Beach a success. The committee consists of representatives from the City of Virginia Beach Resort Programs Office; Ocean Occasions; the hotel/motel, restaurant and retailer associations; as well as representatives from other community organizations.

We cannot forget the many city departments that also provide their support. These dedicated people deserve a big "thank you" for what they have done and are trying to do for our community. After all, they are trying to make the holidays a little bit brighter for all the residents of Virginia Beach!

NAS Sailor Of Quarter Gives 100 Percent Effort

By Annette Hall
Special To The Sun

"The Navy asks for your best effort, it doesn't ask to rule your life and it doesn't ask to rule how you think."

"The Navy just asks for that 100 percent effort — give that, and you're good to go," says Legalman Second Class (LN2) Karen Thompson, who is Naval Air Station (NAS) Oceana's Sailor of the Quarter.

Thompson, who managed restaurants, worked as a secretary, drove a lunch truck and did housekeeping for movie stars in Beverly Hills, says she was almost too old to join the Navy when she made her "now or never" decision.

"I came in to see if I could travel some and learn some," says Thompson of her choice.

Assigned to NAS Oceana since April 1, 1988, Thompson is a legalman in the command's legal department. The department is the convening authority for the commanding officer and therefore, "the disciplinary arm," explains Thompson. "No one wants to come to a legalman."

The counterpart of a civilian paralegal, Thompson deals with matters based on the Uniform Code of Military Justice. For the past year she has been a mast yeoman. That involves preparation of cases and, in some instances, the preparation of people, before they are taken before the captain for disciplinary action (mast). She also completes related post-mast paperwork.

"We do courts-martial here," says Thompson of other associated legal duties. "I prepare some of the pre-trial rights statements, charge sheets and later, take action on the findings of each court-martial."

A Des Moines, Iowa native, Thompson is a five-year Navy veteran. After recruit training in Orlando, Fla., she was sent to school in Great Lakes, Ill., for training as an instrumentman. There she met her husband Douglas. After a year of calibrating instruments and repairing typewriters during a tour of duty at NAS Alameda, Ca., Thompson was allowed to cross-rate to a legalman.

"Nowhere in its testing did the Navy ask me if I could repair a typewriter. The Navy and I both realized at that time that I'm a 'klutz' inside of a typewriter and better suited outside the typewriter," says Thompson of her job change.

She was introduced to the legalman profession when she transferred from Alameda to spouse duty at Great Lakes.

Thompson enjoys the challenges of her job and the Navy and the freedom to develop her career.

"Coming in at the age that I did, I had already experienced a lot of freedom. My parents were concerned that I couldn't take the loss of freedom. I think I took the transition better than most of the 17- and 18-year-olds who don't realize that there is a lot of freedom in the Navy. Once you learn what's expected of you, and it's detailed out for you, and you give the Navy that — and a little bit more — there's a lot of freedom," says Thompson.

Karen Thompson

As Sailor of the Quarter, Thompson received a $50 U.S. Savings Bond; a complimentary

HOLIDAY

Wishing You a
Happy Holiday Season

How Much Do You Know About Christmas Tradition?

It's pretty difficult to imagine a Christmas without Santa Claus or a Christmas tree but, in many parts of the world, the appearance of Santa would puzzle people and a tree would be out of keeping with the Christmas spirit.

Roses, Inc., representing Americans Rose Growers, devised a special quiz to test your knowledge on Christmas customs around the world. Read on and see how many correct answers you can score.

1. There's a country where kids don't know about Santa Claus. On Christmas Eve they wait for an old woman on broomstick to bring them presents. What is she called and from what country does she come?

2. In Belgium and the Netherlands, people would gasp if they saw Santa Claus on a sleigh pulled by eight reindeer. How does St. Nicholas travel about in these countries?

3. In another country, people would shudder if someone brought an evergreen tree into the house on Christmas. Instead of the tree wind flowers are used as seasonal decorations. Why, and in what country?

4. Christmas can be a solemn holiday as well as a joyful one, particularly for adults. Italy and Spain are two countries where some grown-ups don't think singing joyous Christmas carols is the only way to celebrate the holiday. How do they celebrate?

5. For centuries, it has been a custom in the U.S. to have a symbol or token of Christmas spotlighted in a place of honor in your home. What are some of these symbols and where are they placed?

6. The custom of giving gifts for Christmas is believed to have grown from a different holiday that was celebrated before Christ was born. What holiday was it and in what country did this celebration take place?

7. It's pretty hard to imagine a Christmas tree that isn't decorated with lights. In one country, flowers are used to decorate the tree. What is the traditional flower of this country, and how is it used to decorate the tree and around the home?

8. The generous spirit of Christmas is reflected in one country by Christmas dinner. Custom in this country dictates that you set one more place at the dinner table than the number of guests who are coming to dine. That way, even an unexpected guest will find a place and a meal for him or herself without trouble. In what country does this tradition exist?

9. Where was the first Christmas tree used?

10. St. Nicholas gives good children presents, but bad children get a whipping with a birch switch in one country. Where is this custom still practiced today?

These Christmas puzzlers all have relatively easy answers, so read on and see how well you did.

1. Children from all around the world love the gifts and special plans associated with Christmas. In every nation children celebrate the holidays with traditional holiday customs. American children leave milk and cookies by the fire for Santa Claus.

Dutch children in Holland fill their wooden shoes with roses so as to please the old woman called "La Befina." "La Befina" makes her Christmas rides on a broomstick, leaving presents for good children and ashes in the shoes of bad ones.

2. In Belgium and the Netherlands, St. Nicholas rides a white horse instead of traveling with reindeer and a sleigh.

3. In Sweden, wild flowers were flowers grown in someone's garden. The most popular and colorful floral corsage of most Swedes was roses. Often times irises and fresh holly were also used.

Picking fresh roses and other flowers this December may be somewhat difficult, depending on where you live and the climate. By making a personal visit to your neighborhood florist, you can choose from a wide variety of fresh roses, and seasonal flowers and plants.

Whether you live in a small apartment or a large home, your florist can design an arrangement of roses and holiday greenery to fit your living room, kitchen, bedroom or entry hallway. Remember, it is best to order early for top quality blooms at a reasonable price.

4. Devout Catholics in Italy and Spain often observe a day-long fast which begins at sunset on December 23.

5. Many families have a beloved Madonna and Child — a print, a painting, or perhaps an old icon or triptych — they bring out during the Christmas season. It's a happy custom that reflects the true meaning of Christmas.

A fitting way to accent such a Madonna and give it the prominence it deserves in your home is with an arrangement of fresh roses, long-needed pine or holly. To ensure a truly beautiful effect, take the Madonna to your florist and let him design an arrangement that will best complement it. He will know just the right number and color of roses fitting the piece.

6. The custom of giving gifts for Christmas dates back to the ancient Roman Mid-Winter Festival.

7. In the country of Austria, fresh roses placed in water tubes were used to decorate the tree. Roses, when placed on the tree, were felt to symbolize the birth of life and the rewards of a new year.

Roses in several vibrant colors and the special water tubes you need to decorate your tree can be purchased at your local florist. Calling one to two weeks in advance of when you need them ensures you the best quality blooms available.

8. The country where they place an extra place at the Christmas table for unexpected guests is Poland.

9. There are numerous stories explaining the origin of the first Christmas tree, but the following is the most popular.

In the eighth century, St. Boniface, then a missionary to Germany, was attempting to stamp out the pagan custom of making human sacrifices to oak trees. At Yuletide, he led his followers to an evergreen tree and told them it pointed straight up to the Christ Child.

"Take this tree into your homes as a sign of your new worship," he told them. "Celebrate God's power now more with shameful rites, but with the sanctity of your home with laughter and love."

10. The country is Germany. Santa arrives on December 6th, instead of Christmas Eve, and punishes bad children and rewards the good with special treats of candy, books and colorful clothing.

No matter what the tradition or country, Christmas is always a good time to reflect and remember good days gone by and the promise of a bright future.

America's Favorite Tree

Until the middle of the 19th century, any family that wanted a Christmas tree either cut the tree themselves or ordered one from a farmer. The custom was practiced mostly by German-Americans

Looking Forward To Christmas Each And Every Year

It seems to start a littler earlier every year. Before anyone is really prepared for it, the Christmas season is suddenly upon us. In big cities and small towns alike, decorations go up, lights are strung everywhere, and sometimes a creche or a huge Christmas tree is set up in the town square.

Shopping malls and department stores go all out with their own decorations, as they attempt to attract holiday shoppers. Christmas music is heard everywhere. Santas on every corner and in every mall create confusion both for children and for parents, who must try to explain how Santa moves around so quickly. And, everyday, we are reminded countless times of how many shopping days are left until Christmas Day.

For children, the weeks preceding Christmas Day are the most exciting of the entire year. Their anticipation grows stronger with each passing day. All the activities of the holiday season are thrilling for children: Talking to Santa, helping to select and decorate the tree (perhaps with ornaments they have made themselves), making or buying small gifts for mom or dad, and eating freshly baked Christmas cookies.

Perhaps, if they are lucky, they will be taken to see a performance of Tchaikovsky's Nutcracker Suite, or one of America's many regional holiday delights, like New York City's towering tree at Rockefeller Center, or Salt Lake City's Mormon Tabernacle Choir.

THE Upper Cut

5913 High Street West
Portsmouth, VA 23703 484-7939

Finally, Christmas Eve arrives, and children across the country lie in their beds, listening for the sound of reindeer hooves on rooftops, vowing to stay awake until they hear them, but inevitably falling asleep.

When morning finally comes, they rush down the stairs to find that Santa has eaten the cookies which were set out for him, and left piles of brightly wrapped presents under the tree.

Adults, too, look forward to Christmas, though not usually with the same frenzied anticipation which children feel.

For those past childhood, the joys of the holidays may be tempered by stressful factors, like cleaning the house for guests, visiting with in-laws, and dreading the arrival, in January, of all the bills.

But, by the time the last carol has been sung, the last card opened, the last present unwrapped, the last goodbye said to visiting friends and relatives, most people find that all their cares have been swept away in a joyous tide of holiday feeling.

And, many people find that the childish delight of the holidays have been replaced by a mature understanding of the true meaning of Christmas.

They see the many ways of celebrating Christmas as true expressions of good will and fellowships. In our imperfect human way, we do the best we can to commemorate a day which has a great deal of meaning to so many, by giving meaningful gifts to those we love, by making donations to those we do not even know, and by helping children to share in the joy of the holiday season.

For there is in the air at Christmas time an infectious sense of peace and brotherhood, a feeling which goes beyond the recognized boundaries of religion, culture and geography. This feeling is expressed in your own personal ways of celebrating Christmas. Just as different cultures celebrate Christmas differently, so each family has its own traditions, which are passed from generation to generation.

We are in no danger of losing the true meaning of Christmas as long as we vow, like the reformed Ebenezer Scrooge, to honor Christmas in our hearts and try to keep it all the year.

Many Myths Of Mistletoe

In reality, mistletoe is nothing more than a parasitic shrub that grows in the crowns of broad-leaved trees. Yet, according to National Wildlife magazine, people often have invested the plant with supernatural powers — in addition to letting it provide an excuse for a holiday kiss.

For centuries, mistletoe was a source of wonder and an object of worship for humans. Because the

Holiday Entertaining Made Elegant And Easy

Home entertaining has become more and more popular this year with the "new" trend toward home cooking. Parties once catered have become "pot luck." Expensive restaurant get-togethers are giving way to small dinner parties at home.

This year, many traditional holiday get-togethers will be held in someone's home. Will it be yours? If so, why not plan an elegant, yet easy appetizer and dessert buffet?

Appetizers can be very filling . . . and provide sufficient variety to satisfy every palate. Try these elegant (but simple) recipes developed by the Oster Home Economists, and fill in with deli dips and prepared snacks.

Cheesy crab fondue is easy to make. Let the dippers you've chosen show the mood of the party. For an elegant get-together, how about spinach and tomato tortellini skewers? A more casual get-together might call for vegetable dips and rye bread chunks.

Traditional Tom and Jerry drinks can be prepared in advance using this easy batter recipe. Be sure to have plenty of nonalcoholic beverages available for your guests, too.

CRAB AND CHEESE FONDUE

- 1 cup canned chicken broth
 - 1/2 cup sherry wine
 - 3 tablespoons all-purpose flour
 - 2 tablespoons butter or margarine
 - 1 package (8 ounces) cream cheese, cut into 1-inch cubes
 - 3 pound processed American cheese, cut into 1-inch cubes
 - 3-4 drops hot pepper sauce
 - Dash onion powder
 - 6 ounces frozen crab meat, defrosted and flaked (imitation crab meat may be substituted)
- Fresh bread or vegetable dippers

Put all ingredients, except crab meat and bread, into Osterizer blender container. Cover and process at Med-High until well blended.

Pour into medium saucepan or fondue pot; cook, stirring frequently over medium heat. When mixture is thick, stir in crab meat. Turn to Low to serve. Use French bread cubes or vegetables for dippers.

Yield: 8-10 appetizer servings.

TOM AND JERRY BATTER

Prepare this rich and flavorful batter early in the day to be used for your holiday party at night. Divide the recipe in half if you're expecting a smaller group.

- 6 eggs, separated
- 1 cup granulated sugar
- 1 1/2 cup granulated sugar
- 1 teaspoon ground cinnamon
- 1 teaspoon ground nutmeg
- 1/2 teaspoon ground cloves

Assimilated Oster "Kitchen Center" mixer. In large bowl, beat egg whites on High until soft peaks form; gradually beat in 1/2 cup sugar; beat until stiff. In small bowl, combine egg yolk, 1 1/2 cups sugar and spices. Beat on Med-Low three to four minutes until thick and light. Gently fold egg yolk mixture into whites on Low.

Yield: 8 cups approximately 42 servings.

TOM AND JERRY HOT BEVERAGE

- 1 ounce dark rum
- 1 ounce brandy
- 3 tablespoons Tom and Jerry Batter
- Boiling water

Add rum, brandy and batter to a six-ounce mug, stir. Fill mug with boiling water and stir. Garnish with nutmeg.

Videos Hot In Game Industry

Zoom! Zap! Bing! Pow! Look out bad guys! Look out mom and dad! Look out toy world! Video games are back, and so is the legendary software designer who started the industry.

The return of Nolan Bushnell, the man who began the video game craze with "Pong" in the early 1970s, signals the full circle turnaround of what is currently the hottest category in the toy and game industry.

Bushnell, chairman of Axlon, is currently designing and developing video games exclusively for use on Atari Corp.'s 2600 and 7800 home video game systems.

One of the Silicon Valley's most celebrated pioneers, Bushnell founded Atari in 1972, and, four years later, sold it and began a number of other ventures. He returns to video games in a year when their popularity is unquestionably back at full tilt.

Kent Basnight, owner of a landscaping business: "To sell all these Christmas trees."

Trees Are Historical Legends

The Christmas tree probably had its origins in 16th century Germany. Martin Luther is often credited with setting up the first one.

It is said that Luther was so moved by the sight of stars twinkling in the sky above a grove of evergreen trees, that he sought to simulate their effect by setting candles on a small evergreen which he brought into his home. In this way, he hoped to remind his children of the glory of the starlit heavens.

Other legends about the Christmas tree go back much further. In fact, many early Christian beliefs stand behind the tradition of trimming a tree at Christmas.

For instance, it was customary for people to bring indoors during the autumn, such flowering trees as hawthorn or cherry, that they might bloom on Christmas Eve.

One legend connects the Tree of Knowledge which grew in the Garden of Eden with the Holy Cross.

According to this legend, when Adam was expelled from Eden, he carried away with him a piece of the Tree of Knowledge. From this grew the tree from which the Cross was made.

December 24th, according to the old church calendar, was the Feast of Adam and Eve, on which day it was traditional to hang a fir tree with red apples. This Paradise Tree, as it was called, is certainly a forerunner of the Christmas tree as we know it.

Books Make Great Gifts For Kids

This holiday season, as you toy with ideas about what to give the special youngsters in your life, why not consider something that's fun, requires no batteries, and will expand your child's horizons?

Why not give a book?

That's the advice of the National Education Association of New York, which is suggesting that parents give a book they otherwise might not have included on their child's holiday gift list.

"Books are an excellent way to stimulate a child's curiosity, sense of adventure and desire for knowledge," says Constance Eno, president of NEA/NY. "We encourage parents to introduce their children to books that are meaningful and appropriate to their age as well as fun."

Eno pointed out that an early, enjoyable experience with books offers powerful persuasion that reading is worthwhile. That's the first step toward becoming a lifelong reader and lover of books. In addition, it can be a crucial element in encouraging the child's success in school.

Opportunity for sharing

Reading to children is a wonderful way to get them interested in reading, as well as a great sharing time for parents and children.

"The mechanics of reading instruction may be left to the schools, but the child's motivation to learn is substantially diminished unless he or she is convinced that reading is worth the time and effort."

"Children will not be inspired to pick up a book until they understand that their imaginations and emotions can be stirred by what they find on the printed page," said Eno.

Giving a good book that focuses on a topic of interest to a child can provide the pleasurable experience a youngster needs to learn the joy of reading.

Eno notes that the book should challenge but not be far above the child's ability. At the same time, it should not be too easy — that would only bore the child and discourage interest in pursuing other reading.

Advice from the experts

Just what are the options as you select a book for your child?

NEA/NY has these tips:

- For the very youngest: Try nursery rhymes even before your child can walk or talk and they will listen with rapt attention.

- For the toddler: Reading begins with pictures. Earlier, the child delighted in the sound of rhymes. Now, turning pages and looking at pictures provides excitement.

- For beginning readers: Select stories with pictures and simple straight-forward text. Consider folk tales, funny tales. Consider tales, tales of fantasy and stories that tell of everyday things.

Take The Bah-Humbug Out Of Cleaning Emergencies

The guests are on their way and you find a chip in your best crystal? Christmas tree sap on the rug? Grim streaks on the windows? Christmas candles dripping on your heirloom tablecloth?

Don't panic. Getting the house ready for celebrating can be a little easier with some helpful tips from Turbo Wash® on how to cope with wintertime cleaning chores and emergencies.

* Gifts aren't all you find under the tree . . . To remove Christmas tree sap from carpet or clothes, sprinkle on dry baking soda, brush lightly, then sponge with a damp cloth. Spread colorful wrapping paper under the tree to catch falling needles. You can just wipe them up instead of vacuuming.

* Save the chips for the dip . . . Emery paper (not sandpaper) can be used to remove small chips and nicks from crystal. Select the finesse grade paper available, moisten and gently rub over the chip until it smooths out.

* Silverware care . . . Never use twist ties or rubber bands to hold protective wrappers around your silverware. The can corrode the silver even through several layers of wrapping. Use a dip polish on silverplate instead of a rub-on polish. Too much rubbing will damage the soft thin silverplate layer.

* Do the gray winter skies match your siding? Holly wreaths and holiday decorations can really emphasize a dirty house exterior. You probably can't paint till spring, but you can give your house a good cleaning even during the winter months.

The Turbo-Wash® pressure washer sprays a stream of suds and water that powers off dirt and grime. To prevent streaking, always wash siding from the bottom up, and rinse with clear water from the top down.

* Getting ready for Santa . . . If your fireplace is full of ash and soot, Santa may have to leave your presents in the garage. To make the dirty job easier, don't let it get out of hand.

Clean the fireplace every week or two. First sweep or vacuum out ashes, then wipe the hearth with a damp cloth. Use a coarse brush on fireplace walls (if you use the brush attachment on your vacuum cleaner, be sure to wash and dry it thoroughly after each use).

Never clean the firebox (where the fire is laid) with water. It may reduce heat retention and could cause the stones or bricks to crack. Have chimney flues cleaned professionally once a year.

* Are your candles a big drip? Remove wax from tabletops with a fingernail or credit card, then rub remaining wax into the wood with a soft cloth.

For drapes on tablecloths, hold an ice cube over the wax until it hardens, then scrape off as much as possible. Cover the remainder with facial tissues (they absorb wax better than paper towels) on both sides of the tablecloth. Press gently with a warm iron, changing tissues as the wax is absorbed.

* Shining up the brass . . . A lemon rind dipped in a little salt will remove small tarnish spots from brass. Salt is corrosive, so be sure to rinse each piece thoroughly before buffing. After polishing outdoor brass — such as door knobs and address plates — apply a little past wax to preserve the shine.

* Making it crystal clear . . . To clean a crystal chandelier without taking it apart, place several thick towels under it. Cover each bulb with a small plastic bag and secure with a rubber band. Spray with enough window cleaner to soak each pendant, then allow to drip dry. You can polish with a soft cloth for more shine if necessary.

* Give dust the brush-off . . . Instead of using a dustcloth on louvered doors or shutters, use a soft, new paintbrush. If you dampen the brush slightly, it will pick up and hold the dust. This also works well on carved furniture or intricate moldings.

* Keep the rock salt outside . . . The rock salt you spread on steps and walkways to melt ice can be tracked into your home, where it will ruin hardwood floors and carpets. After the snow is melted, sweep the salt away, and use salt and water to remove salt residue. The Turbo-Wash high-pressure stream powers off dirt, salt and debris quickly and easily.

Choose A Theme For Holidays

No matter if you live in sunny California or in the heartland of America, you can lend a bit of New England charm to your holiday.

For decorating and gift-giving with a twist, select a Christmas theme such as Traditional Country, New England Country, Music or Victorian.

Yield House, a New England-based maker of traditional furniture and home furnishings accessories, offers the unique approach of themed decor in the Trim-A-Tree departments of its 16 retail stores located in the Northeast, with everything from wreaths to terrific gift items.

For a Traditional Country holiday setting, use bright red and forest green for your room's decoration, but add a touch of wood.

The New England Country Christmas highlights your seasonal tree with light-blue and white quilted ornaments, ribbons and garland.

To match the perfect Yankee country gift is a classic braided rug. But, if keeping feet warm on those cold nights is not enough, try a snuggly afghan covered with embroidered hearts and homes.

Deep red and dark green are the colors of a Music Christmas. Brass horns are featured everywhere, from tree ornaments to candle holders and sconces. These accessories make lovely gifts for your friends' homes.

For another Christmas theme idea, consider the Victorian Christmas. With rich mauve tones and cerulean accents of luxurious lace and tapestry, fill a woven basket with pine cones for a lovely outdoor scent, and throw a few in the fireplace for a fragrance that will fill the house.

Electronic Study Aids Beneficial To Students

Let's say you have a budding executive, scientist, doctor or professional coming home from college for winter break, and are looking for just the right holiday gift.

You could buy that sweater that somehow will never be worn. Or, you could buy a gift that will give your scholar the edge in both academic and professional life.

"Almost every student, in every discipline, can benefit from one of the electronic study aids available," says Thomas P. Friel, vice president of the Electronic Industries Association/Consumer Electronics Group (EIA/CEG). "And, in today's information-driven world, there is no better study aid for the college student than a home computer."

From small laptop computers that can be taken to the classroom to large-memory desktop models, there is a computer for every student in every field of study.

Unlike many other choices, a computer is much more than a gift. It is a necessary tool that will be used years after graduation. And, if the student on your list already has a home computer, chances are that new software, a laser printer or a high-resolution color monitor could be the answer to your gift needs.

"If a computer doesn't fit your student's needs, a dedicated word processor or 'smart' typewriter with word processing functions is certain to be appreciated," says

Friel.

Another great consumer electronics gift for the college student is a cassette recorder. Affordably priced audio recorders are not just enjoyable, they are also invaluable study aids for taking lecture notes or conducting interviews for student papers.

Other gift ideas that will make the grade:

- A new calculator. From the credit card-sized multi-function calculators that fit neatly into the pocket to desktop scientific models, there is a calculator for every student's need and budget. There are even models that offer the bonus of address and telephone number storage.

- A stocking stuffed with useful accessory items, such as premium black audio tape, computer discs and batteries.

- A digital desk clock, alarm watch or electronic notepad/reminder to keep busy students on schedule.

- Electronic spelling aids, dictionaries and language translators that contain vocabularies for different languages.

If your student is living in a dorm, there are gifts from the world of consumer electronics that can make that lonely room seem more like home.

For the musically inclined, an electronic instrument, such as keyboard, synthesizer or electronic guitar can help your student unwind from the day's studies.

Entertainment items like a color television, portable AM/FM stereo cassette player or personal stereo with minispeakers will also go a long way toward making a sterile dorm more livable.

Yet other welcomed gifts to consider are portable personal TVs or VCRs. And, a gift that you will appreciate as much as your student is a telephone that will keep closer during the college year.

Says Friel: "Consumer electronics have changed the nature of the classroom and today's student can benefit from dozens of items that make studies more productive and enjoyable.

"This holiday season is a perfect time to give the student in your life — whether it's a grade schooler or a grandmother returning for a master's degree — an electronic gift that will take the drudgery out of education."

Many Materials For Making Christmas Decorations Are Right Outside Your Door

You can find many materials for use in making Christmas decorations right outside your back door.

Wreaths can be made on a wire skeleton with greens, fruits, pods, and cones attached together. Plaid ribbons can be added for a festive touch of color. These wreaths can be used on your door or as centerpieces when surrounding a punch bowl or candles.

Branches of pine needles and other greens can add the Christmas spirit to any floral arrangement. For additional sparkle, spray-paint the greens gold, silver or white. Apples and other fruits sprayed gold can add a festive note to a holiday centerpiece.

Nuts can be painted or wrapped in gold or silver foil or in colored paper to be used as Christmas tree ornaments. Wire them into clusters or sprinkle them with glitter.

Famous People Born On Christmas

- 1642 — Isaac Newton, English physicist who discovered the law of gravity.
- 1818 — Clara Barton, organizer of the American Red Cross.

What Exactly Was The Famed Star Of Bethlehem?

Most Americans are familiar with the ancient legend: Almost 2,000 years ago three wise men were guided to a stable in Bethlehem by a bright star.

All we know about the Star of Bethlehem comes from a brief mention in the Gospel of Matthew, but the star has become enshrined in Christmas tradition.

We will probably never know what celestial event inspired the legend of the Star of Bethlehem. But, according to National Wildlife magazine, that has not stopped astronomers from guessing. Under the assumption that the star was an actual physical object, theorists have put forward dozens of candidates.

These include everything from comets, supernovae and planetary conjunctions to meteor showers and zodiacal light, an over-the-horizon glow caused by the scattering of the sun's rays by interplanetary dust particles.

The current leading theory is that the star was a conjunction of the planets Jupiter and Saturn in 7 B.C., which is generally accepted as the year of Jesus' birth.

A conjunction between the two planets occurs about every 20 years as Jupiter, traveling on a faster orbit, overtakes Saturn. When this happens, the two planets may — on rare occasions — look like one bright star to observers on Earth.

although Americans of other stock were beginning to hear about the tradition.

All that changed in 1851, when a new Yorker named Mark Carr started that city's first Christmas tree business, according to National Wildlife magazine.

Carr lived in the Catskills 80 miles north of New York City, where he knew many German families lived. In mid-December of 1851, Carr filled two ox-sleds with young firs and spruces, loaded them on a steamboat, and sold them for a handsome profit at New York's Washington Market.

By 1880, a veritable forest of 200,000 trees was moving to Washington market from all over the Northeast. They came on boats, by trains and in big horse-drawn farm wagons.

By 1920, Christmas tree cultivation had become a profitable business in many parts of the country. Farmers were pleased to find a crop suitable for growing on rocky upland pastures and other unproductive pieces of land.

Holiday Towels, Scot Holiday Napkins, Scott Holiday Tablecovers, Scot-Towels Always At-A-Hand disposable hand towels, and Scot-Towels Custom-Deco Towel Holders, that will add a new flair to holiday traditions.

Create a festive mood for your children and their friends by helping them make their own reusable, easy-to-clean placements:

- Completely cover a piece of foam core or cardboard (approximately 15" x 10") with ScotTowels Holiday Towels and glue in place;

- Have the children color and write their names on the towel;
- Use clear contact paper to cover the towel.

For your own holiday tables at family gatherings or parties, try a new napkin design fold that will impress your family and friends:

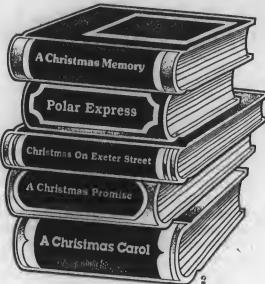

- Place a Scott Holiday Napkin in a diamond shape with the fold along the lower right edge;
- Fold the napkin in thirds by folding right and left points toward the middle and overlapping them until a sharp point is formed at the base;
- Turn the napkin over and gently slip a napkin ring over the bottom point to about the center of the napkin, or tie it with a ribbon.

Create festive mood for your holiday visitors the minute they walk through the door. Using the Scott Holiday Tablecover, make a clever decoration for your front door.

Cover the front door with a tablecover using double-faced tape to hold it in place. Select a wide colorful ribbon to make an oversized bow, and tape the bow and ribbon at an angle to make the door look like a gift package.

Make your own potpourri sachets with a Scott Holiday Napkin and some ribbon.

Spread some cheer in your bathroom by placing ScotTowels Always-At-Hand next to the sink.

In our world of books and knowledge, we cherish the joy of reading and the friendship and good will of our customers. Have a happy holiday.

Eating Sensibly And Light At Christmas Time

Here are five suggestions to help you stay fit and healthy during the holiday feasting season and beyond, from Nan Fuchi, Ph.D., author of The Nutrition Detective: A Woman's Guide to Treating Your Health Problems Through the Foods You Eat (Jeremy P. Tarcher, Inc.). These handy tips are easy to follow and the results won't disappear after the first week of the New Year along with other resolutions.

Cut down, not out: Do you drink too many caffeinated beverages, eat a lot of sugar, or go directly to fried food? Instead of trying to give them up (and failing), begin by reducing the amount. Adding half decaffeinated coffee to your regular brew will cut your caffeine intake in half. Share a dessert with a friend, instead of eating a full portion.

Carbs, not fats: Surprising as it may seem, pasta, potatoes, rice and bread will keep you thin. It's the butter and the cheese you put on them that puts extra weight on you. Fats contain almost twice the calories of carbohydrates!

Love your grocer: Eat at least one good serving of vegetables a day. They provide you with some of the fiber we know can be helpful in preventing disease, and they're filled with important vitamins and minerals.

Steam a variety of vegetables and keep them on hand to add to your spaghetti sauce for a quick pasta primavera. Or make extra stir-fried vegetables for another meal (Chinese food always tastes better the second day).

More fish and fowl: Red meat, some kinds of cheese, heavy sauces and chicken skin will keep the pounds on you and could lead to high cholesterol. Replace red meat with broiled chicken (no skin) and fish, which help you stay lean and healthy. Eat low-fat cheeses like farmer cheese and part-skim mozzarella. Fish is a healthy choice (even fatty fish like salmon, which has been found to lower cholesterol).

Eat what you want: When you eat more whole grains and fewer fats, and have vegetables in your diet every day, you will tend to find sweets and fatty foods less attractive. You can still eat the less nutritious foods, but do so only when you really want them — and eat only as much as it takes to satisfy your taste buds. (Have a few French fries instead of a whole portion.) Don't finish a dessert if it doesn't taste as good as you think it should.

Once you've restored yourself to a nutritional balance, your body will ask for what it needs to stay healthy. And the increased energy you feel may be all the encouragement you need to help you keep those New Year's resolutions all year long.

My Holiday Wish!

weapons to help protect them from injury or to ward off demons.

The pleasant custom of kissing under mistletoe is thought to have originated in Norse mythology. Many Scandinavians have since believed that if two people should embrace beneath a tree where mistletoe is growing, they would be blessed with good luck and a healthy life.

More than 1,000 species of mistletoe are found throughout the world, but only two principal kinds grow in this country, American, or leafy, mistletoe and dwarf mistletoe.

The latter, a diminutive, needle-leaved species, causes widespread damage to pines and other coniferous trees. Its sprigs are too small to be used as a decoration.

American mistletoe, on the other hand, is an important part of our Christmas tradition. It grows among the branches of deciduous trees from central New Jersey to Ohio, Indiana and Missouri, south to Florida, and west to Texas, New Mexico and areas in California.

Mistletoe clumps often form globes five feet wide that weigh more than 50 pounds. In providing fluids for such a large parasite, the host tree sometimes weakens so severely that it dies. Generally, though, American mistletoe does little permanent damage to the tree.

Recapture The Beauty Of A Victorian Christmas

The re-emergence of traditional American values is having a welcome impact on how Americans entertain.

But nowhere will this be more evident than during the holidays. Inspired by literary and screen depictions of "Old World" Christmases, many Americans are looking to recreate the festive and elegant celebrations of the Victorian Age in 1989.

"In the Victorian Age, holidays were truly occasions for celebration among family and friends," says Sibyl Groff of the Victorian Society of American. "It was during the Victorian period that such customs as the Christmas tree, the exchanging of gifts and caroling began."

A Victorian Christmas is like stepping back to a time when the spirit of the season was manifested in genteel ways.

Creating a Victorian Christmas is not a complicated feat — it simply takes imagination, and it's one that all family members can delight in. Decorating and entertaining ideas inspired by Queen Victoria's era follow:

• The Front Door — Welcome visitors with a Victorian greeting created from wreaths decorated with miniature dolls and toys, adorned with lace and tattered ribbons for a festive finishing touch.

• The Yuletide Tree — The most cherished of Christmas traditions creates a feast for the eyes when decorations are used imaginatively. Paper doll cutouts, silk flowers (especially roses), and miniature toys have a decidedly English look.

Godiva's hand painted trolley atop a box of chocolates makes a delightful ornament, and is bound to become a cherished family collectible.

Needlepoint and paisley shawls make marvelous tree skirts and, for special whimsy, try a doll house next to the tree — the children will love it!

• The Hearth — Fireplace mantels can be as much a focal point as the tree when adorned with evergreen, fruit and miniature gingerbread houses or creches.

Favorite collectibles will take on special significance when displayed from the mantel, and stockings filled with delectable confections look great, and will be appreciated by adults and children alike.

Baskets and shiny brass or copper containers filled with pine cones, holly and brightly wrapped gift boxes look terrific when arranged by the hearth.

• Paintings and Mirrors — Adorn distinguished pieces with evergreen and pine cones, and create picture hangings from decorative velvet and taffeta ribbons for an English country look.

• The Table-settings — Simple, but abundant decorations, such as artfully arranged fruits of the season in cornucopia effects, assembled with brightly colored ball-shaped ornaments, attractively offset any holiday feast.

Brilliantly polished apples, limes and lemons can be used throughout the house to create a delightful aroma and welcoming touch.

Chandeliers take on added importance when strewn with ever-green boughs and metallic ribbons. And for a dramatic effect attach a wreath just below the chandelier.

• The Victorian English Tea — A refreshing alternative to dinner parties and open house buffets, a formal tea resplendent with silver and fine porcelain is sure to delight your guests and take far less time in planning.

Delicate tea sandwiches, scones with rich jams and desserts, such as Godiva's Milk Chocolate

Royale Liqueur Cake flavored with Amaretto, are sure to delight the most discriminating palates.

After tea, invite guests to sing carols by the fire — a touch that is sure to warm the spirits and set the stage for the most treasured holiday of all.

Make Holiday Memories Last With Photos

After all the turkey is eaten, all the gifts are unwrapped, and the Christmas tree ornaments are stored again until next year, what will you have left to remind you of a festive season?

By taking photos and having them developed by a quality lab, you will have something that will last way into the next year and for many years to come.

Here are some hints to help you snap those photos that will give you many hours of happy memories:

• First of all, remember to put new batteries in your camera and flash unit. Fresh batteries allow your camera to respond more quickly and take clearer shots.

• Stock up on film. There's nothing worse than having the perfect image to capture in a photo, but with no film to record it on.

Also, using Mystic's postage-paid photo mailers is convenient and efficient. Just drop the mailer with your film into a mailbox and within 24 hours after Mystic receives them, your finished prints are on their way back to you.

• Give film as a gift. If you enjoy your photos so much, wouldn't your friends and relatives? In Mystic's "Holiday Film Paks," you receive six rolls of film, six mailpaks and six processing certificates for approximately $50 (depending on the type of film).

So, grab your camera and your film. By using these helpful hints, your holiday memories will be vivid and long-lasting.

engineering and a new generation of technically-savvy kids who were in diapers during the earlier boom.

Today's video game technology has helped produce better products, lower prices and a new generation of drastically improved game cartridges. In particular, the lower prices have encouraged families to jump on the video game band wagon.

For example, the Atari 2600 video game system — $150 ten years ago — is now under $50, even with the system's design improvements.

Game cartridges for that system were $30, yet today they sell for about $15 — although they feature more complex storylines, stunning graphics, music and special effects.

Today, $150 will buy an Atari XE — the most advanced system available — with a package that includes a joystick, video gun, attachable keyboard, three free games and a sleek console unit that packs 64 kilobytes of memory.

By adding a disk drive, the XE is transformed into a fully functioning computer — not a bad way for junior to spend his free time.

For kids and parents looking for the newest in video games, it's good to know we've come a long way from the monotony of ping pong.

Games that now run the gamut from arcade and adventure to sports driving, flying, fighting and some of the wildest and most elaborate fantasies imaginable.

With new game systems that feature more power and cartridges with more memory, today's games offer sharper color, clearer characters and greater detail.

Yesterday's video boxes resembled packing crates with biceps. On today's advanced games such as Atari's "Fight Night," you can construct your own fighter using a menu of body parts including a variety of heads, torsos, legs and feet.

Once you've created your boxer, you can train him, spar him and pit him against rivals in a round-robin tournament complete with live-action sound effects and blow-by-blow score. Because they are packed with more electronic memory, new video games can also do more.

"Desert Falcon" is an example of the type of sophistication offered in today's action cartridges. Available on all three Atari video game systems, Desert Falcon is an ancient fantasy brought to life.

The game enables players to sail over endless Egyptian sands in search of the Pharaoh's precious gems. In order to survive, the player must battle swarms of blitzing beasts and try to scoop up lost treasures endowed with special powers. Challenge is increased as the player advances through four increasingly difficult levels of play.

The fantasy is played out on a realistic 3-D view with sharp images definition, brilliant colors and startling sound effects.

"The quality of the games offered on today's systems makes the games of the early 1980s seem remarkably simplistic," says Donn Nauert, 22, a champion video game player and captain of the U.S. National Video Game Team. "The great thing is, they keep getting better."

1990 Local Industry Environmental Analysis

By Vincent A. Napolitano

President of the Chesapeake-based Tidewater Builders Association, and a Virginia Beach resident.

The 1980s to the building industry were like the opening lines of Charles Dickens' Tales of Two Cities: "It was the best of times; it was the worst of times..."

We, in the Hampton Roads region, have played an integral part in one of the greatest nonwar time influxes in economic growth and defense-related spending that we probably will ever see in our lifetimes. With this in mind let me cite some statistics that were gathered from various economists and professional publications.

The population of South Hampton Roads has grown by 17 percent, or 138,835 persons from 1980 to 1987. This growth makes the Norfolk/Virginia Beach/Newport News Metropolitan Statistical Area the 27th largest in the United States, just ahead of Sacramento and New Orleans.

Between 1980 and 1989, nonagricultural civilian employment in Hampton Roads grew by just over 122,000 workers to more than 567,000 for a compound annual growth rate of 3.1 percent, while U.S. employment grew at an annual rate of 1.8%.

The Hampton Roads economy generated 5,000 to 6,000 new jobs per year in 1988, down from an annual job creation rate of 20,000 in 1987 and in 1986.

I note these numbers because if you look at those three years in terms of sheer numbers, we could have created a locality with population comparable to that of the city of Suffolk.

There have been more than 105,000 single-family homes under contract in South Hampton Roads from 1984 to 1989. This equates to over $3.7 billion in investment in this area's residential housing portfolio. Also, during this same five-year period it should be pointed out that there was approximately $3.5 billion invested in new commercial properties, according to the Builders and Contractors Exchange statistics.

I mention these wide ranging economic barometers since I think they represent "the best of time," and I think that we all can agree that the entire region has benefited from these advances.

As far as the negative side of the quote, we must face the fact that this economic growth period must take a break and that this nationwide period of exceptional prosperity will have to slow down!

This is inevitable and can be seen by the slowing of the nationwide growth indicators, and the decline in defense spending to pay for the other critical needs such as the savings and loans fiasco, health care, and the ever-growing deficit. Thus, I think it is safe to say that we have seen some very good times nationwide, but now we must proceed cautiously.

Interestingly enough, a March 27, 1989 article in The Wall Street Journal, titled "The New Boom Towns," ranks the cities of Virginia Beach and Chesapeake eighth in areas with the best potential for new job growth between 1988 and 1993.

However, we can not rest on this article's accolades and we must move forward to the 1990s. Some facts of note that we should recognize in the coming decade are:

1. Today's market for homes is changing as the "Baby Boom Generation" ages. Many babyboomers have been in their homes and present jobs for a considerable amount of time and may have built up equity in their present residences and have greater incomes. There may be a greater market in the 1990s for custom homes or "step-up models." This trend should be monitored cautiously since the boomers probably will not take such a risk if the economic factors are not favorable.

2. Interest rates play a major part in today's housing inventory. For example, if it is estimated by the Southeastern Virginia Planning District Commission that a downward shift of one percentage point can sell approximately 1,600 houses. Therefore, for our industry and the economy in general to keep moving forward, we will have to see the Federal Reserve Board relax the long-term lending rates.

3. Interstate 1-644 will be completed in 1991 and should be a great boost to both the Peninsula and Northern-Suffolk and Chesapeake because it will take some of the traffic congestion off of the Hampton Roads Bay Bridge Tunnel and open up vast areas for new commercial and industrial prospects. With this growth we can count upon a new area to build and prosper regionally.

4. Our population in general will become more productive in the 1990s due to the fact that many people will be older and have a better knowledge of their professions and duties. This, in turn, should lead to more profitable businesses, increased personal earnings and greater spending power.

5. It is projected that our economic growth rate for 1990 will be between one to three percent which is down from its peak of about 10 percent in 1986. This declining growth rate will allow each person in our industry and others to take a quick breather and look at what pent-up demand is for their product and what their best plan of attack is to move their standing inventory.

We have been very lucky that we have had a soft landing and have not had a recession like in the 1970s.

According to National Association of Home Builders' housing economists and John Whaley of the SVPDC, we should now mirror the national housing outlook. New home starts in this region will follow the nationwide trends instead of being a couple of percentage points in front as we experienced in the 1980s.

For 1990 as a whole, NAHB is forecasting about 1.45 million housing starts, up almost four percent from 1989. Therefore, in 1990 South Hampton Roads should see no more than 5,000 total new residential permits in keeping with the estimated figures of concern in the 1990s which I believe we, as an industry, will have to contend with are:

1. Environmental regulations, which will be increasingly placed upon this industry because we are the first in line to blame in the growth management arguments.

2. Not to force these debates subsiding in the near future, nor do I think that we should ever back down from our stance to protect the vested rights of property owners, since land has historically been one of the few prudent investments a person can make.

The Chesapeake Bay Act and the proposed Non-Tidal Wetlands regulations will affect the cities of Virginia Beach, Chesapeake and Suffolk, potentially rendering much as $3 billion worth of property inaccessible for development.

This, I believe, will ultimately make any of our local legislators take a hard look at what they have created. We must continue in trying to get a fair environmental/economic balance.

2. Growth management regulations and regulatory fees will be an area on which we will have to continue to stay on top so that localities can not keep trying to place their sins of the past upon the new home buyer.

The use of conditional zoning powers and impact fees could turn into legalized bribery, which we have already seen attempted in Chesterfield County where a fee of more than $8,000 per new house was proposed.

We made some proposals to the Commission on Infrastructure and Revenue Sources in October and sincerely hope that the legislators take a look at such options as the gasoline tax, decal fees and the sales tax as revenue sources for localities.

3. Finally, this industry must continue to be the catalyst for trying to provide affordable housing despite increased costs due to federal and state government cutbacks.

If we don't, we will be losing a large segment of our market and denying many the lifetime dream of homeownership. I think that this dream is very much alive and well as was shown by the exceptional attendance at this year's Homearama.

Builders should start fostering the idea that not only are we dedicated business men and women, but foremost, we are the "investors in the community."

We are the ones who look at a piece of property and visualize the potential for a well-planned neighborhood and supporting community services. We are the "risk takers" in providing shelter to families in the Commonwealth.

I'm encouraged by the fact that this region has weathered the economic downturn without going into a full-fledged recession. In the next two years I hope to see the area continue its "boom" as started in The Wall Street Journal article.

Our mission and duty as responsible citizens and businesspersons will be to see that growth and prosperity are on the top of our local and state legislators agendas for the 1990s!

Letters To The Editor

Pro-Abortion

Editor:

It is such a nice New Year's feeling to know the pro-abortion forces were able to raise 6,854 people to win the governor's house for L. Douglas Wilder.

It really warms my heart to know the pro-abortion forces have saved abortion on demand, for any reason and at any time. Now the evil pro-life Christians in Virginia won't be able to take away a woman's right to exterminate her offspring because it is the wrong sex.

It's her choice to exterminate it and L. Douglas Wilder will protect that choice. Even if the sonogram is down in the eighth month of pregnancy and shows a boy instead of a girl; she will now have the protected, safe and legal right to get rid of the little guy because she wanted a girl.

If a woman who is nine months along gets angry at her husband and wants to kill her baby, let us all remember, it is her business and her body. Why don't these Christian pro-life fanatics mind their own business. No one is forcing them to kill their own unborn children, but they have no right to tell me not to kill mine.

I'm sure if they could, all these little babies would thank Doug for winning. They certainly would not want to be born into this world if their parents are not rich. Lets all remember the old pro-abortion saying, "Better dead than alive, unless the world is a perfect place to live."

Think Of The Homeless During The Holidays

This past week has probably been the coldest it has been all winter. Each morning before work we have to defrost the windshields on our cars or get out the ice scrapers. But while the windows are defrosting we can sit inside a heated house and sip a cup of coffee.

There are too many people out there who are less fortunate than most of us. During these unbearably cold days, they have no heated house in which to seek shelter and they'd be lucky to find a cup of coffee.

They are the homeless, and there are places for them to go. Thanks to a few strings pulled by the city, the Dome on 19th Street is being used as a daytime shelter, providing hot coffee, doughnuts and hot meals. After the shelter closes at 5 p.m., the homeless are served a hot meal at the Fire Escape, a Christian coffee house on 17th Street, and then are taken to various churches to sleep.

The food being served to the homeless is donated by various restaurants and organizations. The city supplies the coffee.

While we are all enjoying the holidays, let's just keep in mind how lucky we are.

This poem was found on a table at the Dome, next to a group of homeless, who were taking advantage of the warmth and hospitality.

Today
Outside my window, a new day I see
And only I can determine
What kind of day it will be.

It can be busy and sunny, laughing and gay,
Or boring and cold, unhappy and grey.
My own state of mind is the determining key,
For I am only the person I let myself be.
I can be thoughtful and do all I can to help,
Or be selfish and think just of myself.
I can enjoy what I do and make it seem fun,
Or gripe and complain and make it hard on someone.

I can be patient with those who may not understand,
Or belittle and hurt them as much as I can.
But if I have faith in myself,
And I believe what I say,
And I personally intend to make
The best of each day.

Action-Packed Race Comes To The Beach

An action-packed offshore power boat race coming to Virginia Beach on May 12 is an excellent way to begin the summer season of 1990.

This race will attract national publicity to the resort city. But more importantly, the race can beneficially impact the resort economy, which is relatively slow before Memorial Day, May 31. The race will ultimately boost tourism in Virginia Beach during that weekend.

If this event becomes a popular, annual event, Virginia Beach will create a positive image for itself not only among boating enthusiasts but also among the general public. In fact, Bob Veith, co-chairman of advertising for the race, has already mentioned that race organizers want to attract the national divisional race to Virginia Beach within the next three years.

An event of this size will definitely attract ESPN or other networks' coverage.

The offshore race will be of most danger to those who are bold enough to race high-speed boats, possessing the ability to reach 130 miles per hour. — S.W.M.

City's Holiday Project Provides Food, Gifts To Needy

The Mayor's Report

Virginia Beach Mayor
The Honorable
Meyer Oberndorf

The Virginia Beach Department of Social Services recently began its annual Holiday Project.

Each year, the project provides food baskets and gifts to the needy citizens of Virginia Beach at Thanksgiving and Christmas. The citizens who are served are the aged, disabled, and children deprived of parental support.

Many of the persons helped during the holiday season have fallen on hard times, some have had fires in their homes and have lost all their possessions. Others are homeless from loss of jobs due to illness. Often the families are women with small children whose husbands have deserted them, leaving them without means for financial support.

Families who come to the agency to apply for financial assistance must sometimes wait four to six weeks for approval of their cases. Emergency needs of food and clothes are met from the agency's food pantry and clothes closet. The family may also be referred to one of 95 area churches who form a resource network to provide emergency needs. Many of these churches and others in the city sponsor families at holiday time for a little special something.

In 1988, the project provided 544 Thanksgiving food baskets to needy families. At Christmas, 1988, the project served 1,084 families with food and toys. In addition, the project also referred 2,062 children to the Joy Fund for assistance. Each year the need far exceeds the donations made to the agency.

The process to sponsor a needy family is very simple. Interested clubs, organizations, businesses, schools and private individuals should call 431-3258 or 431-3259, Monday through Friday between the hours of 9 a.m. and 5 p.m. A volunteer will explain the project to you and ask if you are interested in sponsoring one or more families for food, or food and gifts for the holiday season. If you confirm your interest, you will be given the name of the families you will sponsor, the names and ages of the family members, and some details about the families specific situations.

Learning Labs Helped Virginia Beach Children

The
Report

By Clair Polley,
President of the Virginia
Beach Education Association

The National Education Association recently announced the designation of four more school districts around the country as sites for NEA's Learning Laboratories Initiative.

The new sites in New York, Pennsylvania, Oklahoma, and Michigan bring the total number of NEA Learning Lab school districts to eight.

In each of these Learning Lab school districts, NEA members are collaborating with their communities on ambitious, innovative approaches that significantly restructure and improve how learning takes place.

"We hope these approaches can become inspirations for school districts across the United States," notes NEA President Keith Geiger. "Our Learning Lab project aims to show that fundamental change is possible not only in individual schools but at the school district level as well."

Each NEA Learning Lab site receives a $5,000 grant to cover initial startup costs and ongoing consulting assistance from educational experts and specially trained educators experienced in school restructuring efforts. In addition, each restructuring site becomes part of NEA's national computer network that links all of the Learning Labs and gives NEA members instant access to the latest educational research.

The four new NEA Learning Lab sites include two districts--Chickasha in Oklahoma and Mendon in Michigan--that will be using new approaches to meet the challenges that face rural education.

The new Learning Lab in New York, the Greece school system, is located near Rochester, and the fourth new Learning Lab site, the Greensburg Salem district in Pennsylvania, is near Pittsburgh.

In Chickasha, NEA members are helping to create a new collaborative decision-making process for the entire district. Through this democratic process, teachers and school board members will identify district-level school improvement goals. Each school staff will then develop its own specific school plans to reach those goals.

In Greece, school staff and the community are jointly creating, from scratch, a 500-student "school of the future." NEA members in Greece have already forged new site-based making patterns in all the district's schools.

In Greensburg Salem, NEA members are developing a "school within a

Are Standards Shifting Re: Ethics In America?

By Lillian Youell,
Virginia Beach Constitution
Celebration Commission
Consultant

The end of the year seems a good time to reflect on events during these past 12 months. Scandals involving prominent people in government, education, religion, sports and law have dominated the news. Many have been traded publicly.

On the national scene, we have witnessed the trials and tribulations of Jim Bakker and Jimmy Swaggart, seen the fall of Pete Rose and Dexter Manley, read of the conviction of Ivan Boesky for insider trading and learned of the massive misappropriation of funds by HUD officials.

The Center for Media and Public Affairs this year conducted a survey from January to October and reported that during this eight-month period, the Washington, D.C. media - television and daily newspapers - did 1,086 stories about congressional ethical scandals, citing 27 House members and 20 senators.

On our state and local level, a judge has been indicted, and a commonwealth's attorney subpoenaed as a witness in the case that involves allegations of tampering with court records. The city's voters in November showed their concerns that our elected public servants live by the rules and above reproach by failing to reelect an incumbent sheriff. The commonwealth's attorney withdrew from the race. The education community is still in shock over the hasty departure of the superintendent of schools.

In spite of many unanswered questions, all agreed that more education in the field of ethics and professional conduct is needed.

Have families, schools and churches abandoned their responsibility to teach ethical behavior? In his bestselling book, All I Really Needed to Know I Learned in Kindergarten, Robert Fulghum shares his personal belief of what is needed to live a meaningful life. He lists the behavioral guidelines he learned as a kindergartner, such as - share everything, play fair and don't hit people! - and claims that all one needs to know about ethics is absorbed at an early age.

"Ethics in America" was a major focus at the National Law-Related Education Seminar I attended last month in St. Louis. The speaker at the issues forum was Michael J. Howlett, Jr., a partner in the Chicago law firm Pheilan, Pope and John.

He served as deputy special outside counsel for the U.S. House of Representatives Ethics Committee in preparation of the recent ethics case against Supervisors, as well as astronauts, have to be made of the "right stuff" to meet challenges on a regular basis. Naval Air Station (NAS) Oceana recognizes its top supervisor on a quarterly basis through a selection board.

"I've been to several of these boards in the past two years - I may be getting used to them," says Aviation Machinist's Mate First Class (ADM) Irvin H. Wiesner, who is the current command Supervisor of the Quarter.

Wiesner's experience before boards stems from his nomination by the Air Operations Department to compete for sailor of the year and other quarterly awards as the department representative.

Every so often, though, even the best of us face the effects of Murphy's Law which presents challenges not easily overcome. As Supervisor of the Quarter, Wiesner was to participate in a joint awards ceremony and luncheon as the sailor of the quarter as guest of the tion's SH-3 helicopters," says Wiesner. He is also a crew chief and a rescue swimmer. On standby if there is a plane crash or if an aircraft ejects from an aircraft, Wiesner says, "We will go out and bring them back or provide an assist." Search and rescue members are called on to assist in both civil and military emergencies.

Weisner is taking management courses through St. Leo college to enhance his management abilities.

"When I retire with 30 years, I'll be 49 and certainly young enough to start another career. I would like that to be equally as rewarding and as worthwhile as my naval career." He is currently looking at two career options: applying for a commission through the limited duty officer program or continuing in the enlisted ranks, reaching chief petty officer.

As Supervisor of the Quarter, Weisner receives a $50 U.S. Savings Bond, complimentary room for two at a Lynnhaven hotel, tickets for two to Busch Gardens, dinner passes for two onboard the Spirit of Norfolk and a plaque. The luncheon at the Voyager Club hosted by Captain Matton will be included with the next quarterly award winners.

CivicLynnhaven DAR Holds Meeting

The Lynnhaven Parish Chapter, National Society Daughters of the American Revolution will meet on Saturday, Jan. 13 at 10 a.m. in the home of Mrs. Harvey Williams, 637 East Lynn Shores Circle.

Hostesses for the meeting will be Mrs. Robert McCrary and Mrs. Willard Strifler.

Special guest speaker will be Ms. Lannah Hughes of Green Run High School. Hughes was selected by the Virginia State DAR as Virginia's Outstanding American History Teacher for 1989. Her innovative teaching methods, her ability to stimulate a love and appreciation of history in her students and the creation of a class room setting where history comes to "life" were criteria for her selection. She will address, "How History Affects The Future."

Mrs. William Vose, chapter DAR Good Citizen chairman, will introduce the chapter's 1990 DAR Good Citizen Award recipients: Christine Everett of Green Run High School; Jason George of Kempsville High School; and Pam Harrell from Tabernacle Baptist School. These are high school seniors who have exhibited qualities of leadership, dependability, service and patriotism.

Reservations may be made for this meeting by calling 481-6929 or 340-2536.

McGhee Manages Lumbermen's

Lumbermen's Investment Corporation recently named Dick McGhee regional manager of its new offices at 4456 Corporation Lane.

Launching his career at Associated Mortgage Companies of Virginia, McGhee has been involved in the mortgage banking industry for over twenty years. Before coming to Lumbermen's, he served as vice president of Bailey Mortgage Company. Prior to Bailey Mortgage Company, McGhee was the manager of Lomas & Netterton, residential organizations for the Tidewater and Roanoke areas for 15 years.

As manager of Lumbermen's, he and his team of financial professionals will concentrate on the residential marketing of FHA-VVA loans.

Chairman Bernd will work with the area's business, banking and community leaders to encourage the purchase of U.S. savings bonds at savings institutions as well as participation in payroll savings plans in the workplace. He joins a nationwide committee of volunteer executives, headed this year by national chairman Allen Jacobson, chairman of 3M.

In addition to serving as the U.S. Savings Bond Campaign chairman, Bernd is also the primary representative to the Medical Malpractice Review Panel of the Second Congressional District of Virginia. He serves on the Board of Governors of the AHA and on the Council of Legislation for the VHA.
